Two Kinds of Debt. We Need More Money. Wheat Goes Home. Hogs Are Up—Good News.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

HAVING SIGNED the agreement permitting Germany to settle her war debt by paying of seven hundred and fourteen millions dollars, instead of eight billion dollars, Europe now looks at Uncle Sam, asking:

"What will you do?"

No one in Europe acknowledges any difference between money taken by brute force from a beaten enemy, and an honorable debt for money borrowed by gentlemen "with their backs to the wall."

This nation will see a difference, whatever its officials may say.

THIS COUNTRY needs MORE MONEY, not "inflation," but reflation, as W. R. Hearst has pointed out repeatedly. Our monetary system, today, reminds you of a small boy's football, with all the air out of it. It lacks bounce.

Everything is sagging down. Reflation, pumping new money into the world of business and industry, will be like pumping new air into the deflated football.

SENATOR BORAH is trying to make the Senate see the truth, but the effort is mixed up with a fight against beer, that confuses the issue.

The amount of gold we possess would justify the addition of billions to our currency, leaving the dollar as sound as ever and business much healthier with the sacred "gold basis," intact.

The problem is how to get the new money into circulation, into the hands of those that would spend it in stores, and elsewhere.

Pumping it into banks or other corporations, to be hoarded, or used to repair mistakes in financial judgment, as the Finance Board dumps its billions, will not solve any problem.

THE GOVERNMENT, thinking to hold up the price of wheat, forgetting old "supply and demand" spent hundreds of millions for grain and storage, did not hold up the price of wheat, and did not know what to do with that grain, "eating its head off," in storage.

The Red Cross was invited to distribute wheat among the needy, and has got rid of more than thirty-one million bushels of it.

ELEVEN MILLION bushels of the wheat have been fed to live stock, which seems amusing. The wheat left the farm, travelled to Chicago or some other wheat center, was handled and re-handled, stored at great expense, then taken back to the farms, perhaps the very farms where it was grown, to be eaten by animals there.

That will amuse farmers and old supply and demand.

It appears, also, that a considerable part of the wheat was used up in "Red Cross expenses," for milling wheat into flour, transportation, etc.

It is an amusing story of a capitalistic government trying a little bolshevik experiment, not too successfully.

ONE LITTLE gleam of sunshine, and it comes from the farm. Prices for stock are rising. Hogs have gone up since May 28 $2.20 per hundredweight, and cattle have improved also.

Two dollars a hundred more for hogs means to many farmers the difference between reasonable prosperity with payment of mortgage, and losing the farm.

Fancy heavy steers are selling at $9 a hundred, and, more important, the farmer feeding corn to hogs at present prices gets 40 to 50 cents a bushel for corn that he has been selling as grain for 18 to 24 cents.

ALWAYS KEEP good, sound tires on your front wheels, if you value your life.

Also, never drive at a speed that means loss of control, in case of a blow-out.

Also, keep a firm hold on your steering wheel, at all times, remembering that even the best tire may go, unexpectedly.

MAJ. E. M. SKINNER was driving near Warrentown, Va., with a friend. A front tire blew out, the car left the road, hit a tree, both men were killed.

Had the car been going only 35 to 45 miles an hour, which is fast enough, the car in all probability would not have left the road. Fast driving means betting your life on the quality of a tire. Blow-outs are rare, now, with tires marvellously improved and mileage increased. But why bet your life on anything?

PROF. GEORGES CLAUDE, inventor of the Neon light, which you see in signs, everywhere, announces an important new discovery.

He believes that his new "cold" light, produced by running an electric current through a tube filled with a mixture of rare gases, will greatly reduce the cost of house lighting.

Lighting companies, also General Electric and Westinghouse, will welcome the invention. Whatever makes a product cheaper increases the prosperity of the producer, in the long run.

THE GOVERNMENT supplies money to send home by rail, veterans gathered in Washington, and many of them, wisely, are accepting transportation and going home.

There is no hope whatever of any bonus legislation this year, and veterans that feel they have been badly treated should return to their homes, to tell their

CURTIS GETS YEAR, FINE OF $1,000

Counsel for Norfolk Man Starts Move For Appeal

FLEMINGTON, N. J., July 11. — (AP.) — John Hughes Curtis, convicted of hindering capture of the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby, was sentenced today to one year in jail and a fine of $1,000.

The maximum possible sentence which could have been imposed under the indictment on which Curtis was found guilty, was three years imprisonment and $1,000 fine.

"The best lead in the Lindbergh kidnaping case is in an Army cantonment."

He did not elaborate on the statement.

CONTACTS DENIED

Fisher shouted that Curtis had never had any contact with the kidnapers. He said:

"He was just a man with wild dreams about boats and things."

This statement came as a complete surprise because the defense stand during the trial seemed to be that Curtis had been in touch with the real kidnapers and had done everything possible to help obtain return of the baby and capture of the kidnapers.

Curtis was arrested after he signed a confession that all his negotiations were a hoax, but later he repudiated this confession and when the trial opened the state accepted the repudiation and based its charges on the allegation that Curtis had been in touch with the kidnapers and then had prevented their capture by the hoax confession.

HIS CLIENT 'GOAT'

In arguing for arrest of judgment, Fisher said Curtis had been made the "goat" because he was "honest enough to come within the state's jurisdiction."

In an impassioned plea to the court before sentence was imposed, Fisher dwelt at length upon his assertion that prejudice had caused Curtis' conviction.

He said that Curtis was tried "in a court room steeped with prejudice in which the most famous man in the county, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, sat throughout the trial." He shouted:

11 Perish In W. Va. Flood

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 11. —(AP.)—Eleven persons were reported drowned today by flood waters of Paint and Armstrong creeks, near here. Eight bodies were recovered.

Reports that more than 150 homes on the two creeks had been washed away were received here. It was not known how many were occupied.

Mute evidence of the havoc, brought about by a sudden rainstorm, was seen in the Kanawha River at Charleston. Both creeks empty into the Kanawha. Sides of houses, staircases, mattresses, brooms, telephone poles and various articles of furniture floated in great profusion down the river. Navigation was almost imposible except in small craft.

The first casualty reported was a white man whose body was found at Crown Point on Armstrong Creek. His name was believed to be Henry Jenkins, but positive identificaton was lacking. Four of those drowned were believed to be members of a Negro family named Mitchell.

Two children named Kincaid were rescued at Chelyan after they had floated on a log nine miles down swollen Paint Creek. They said their home was swept away.

A physician treated a father and two children after they had been rescued from driftwood in the Kenawha River. A mother and two other children of the family were unaccounted for.

LANG FIRES 19 FOR LOAFING

Public Works Director Edward G. Lang today fired 19 men whom he accused of shirking their work. They were employed on the Mt. Washington roadway extension job.

Lang said he had received complaints that the men were loafing on the job and that he made a personal investigation.

Flag at Half-Mast For Submarine Men

CHERBOURG, France, July 11. —(AP.)—All hope of rescuing alive any of the more than 60 men who went down last week with the French submarine Promethee was abandoned today.

The French tri-color was flown at half mast over the naval base headquarters and the Italian salvage steamer Artiglio II prepared to return to Brest, giving up its attempts to reach the men. A diver for three hours yesterday tried without success to detect signs of life within the sunken vessel.

DENIES U. S. AGREED TO DEBT PACT

No Hint Given America Would Take Burden, Stimson Says

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 11. —The American government had no representative at the Lausanne conference and no one there was authorized to speak for the United States in any "gentlemen's agreement," by which the reparations settlement was made contingent upon the United States canceling or drastically reducing the $11,000,000,000 in war debts owed this country.

This statement was made today by Secretary of State Stimson in response to questions.

Other than this, and the observation that officially he knew nothing of the "agreement," the Secretary of State declined to discuss the Lausanne arrangement, which if carried out, would make the United States shoulder a good many more billions of dollars of war costs.

RESENTMENT STIRRED

Meanwhile, the tide of resentment and suspicion on Capitol Hill was growing over the Lausanne conference and its surprising contingent result—that Germany is to be let off with a cent on the dollar provided, presumably, the Allies can settle their debts to the United States on the same or a comparable basis.

There is no prospect of Congress accepting any such arrangement.

A number of Senators voiced suspicions that some "encouragement" must have been given from Washington to the Lausanne ending.

Others merely thought that the Franco-British position merely dated back to the time of the vists to Washington of Premier Ramsay MacDonald and Premier Laval, of France, last autumn.

It was officially admitted at that time that President Hoover had

REYNOLDS' ROMANCE SIFTED

Mysterious Shooting Of Year Ago Disclosed

BULLETIN.

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., July 11. — (INS.) — Mrs. Libby Holman Reynolds took the stand this afternoon at a resumption of the inquest into the death of her husband, Smith Reynolds.

WINSTON SALEM, N. C., July 11.—(AP.)—Authorities delved today into Libby Holman's romance with Smith Reynolds and his history for the past several years seeking some clue to the mystery surrounding his death. This development came as the Coroner's inquest prepared to resume its investigation with the expectation that Miss Holman would take the stand.

Meanwhile, authorities sifted a story that Reynolds had a narrow escape from death by shooting on a Long Island outing almost a year to the day before the young heir to tobacco millions was found shot through the head at Reynolds, the manorial Reynolds estate here last Wednesday.

BULLET PIERCES SHIRT

Sheriff Scott said he was informed a bullet pierced Reynolds' shirt on that occasion.

Out of the inquiry into the romance of the 20-year-old Reynolds and Miss Holman, a Broadway blues singer, who was six years his senior, came for the first time the details of their marriage.

They were married at Monroe, Mich., November 29, 1931, by a justice of the peace. They announced their marriage in New York last May and it was reported then they were married in Hawaii as Reynolds, an aviation enthusiast, was returning from a trip by plane and boat around the world.

The date of the marriage was just six days after Reynolds' first

HOOVER VETOES RELIEF BILL

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(AP.) —Carrying out his threat, President Hoover today vetoed the $2,122,000,000 Wagner-Garner relief measure.

The President's veto message, running more than 2,000 words in length, was placed in the hands of newspapermen at the White House within 15 minutes after the measure reached the chief executive.

In it, the President launched another bitter attack against the provisions insisted upon by Speaker Garner to make loans to individuals. The message said:

"This proposal violates every sound principle of public finance and of government. Never before has so dangerous a suggestion been seriously made to our country. Never before has so much power for evil been placed at the unlimited discretion of seven individuals."

Having in mind the wish for early adjournment, the President in his message recommended "that a compromise should be reached upon terms suggested by members of both houses and both partis, and that Congress should not adjourn until this is accomplished."

Racing Plane Built For Russell Thaw

NEW YORK, July 11.—(AP.)—Russell Thaw, 21-year-old son of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, is having a racing plane built for him which he will enter in the two principal races of the national air show at Cleveland. It is expected the plane will be capable of 300 miles an hour. Delivery will be taken before the end of this month and after tests Thaw will fly it to Los Angeles for the start of the transcontinental air derby.

Anger Grows Against Convict Labor on State Roads

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., July 11. —The rising tide of public resentment over the "torture death" of Albert Maillefert, 19-year-old convict, of Westfield, N. J., today forced the closing of the Sunbeam convict road camp, where the youth died while shackled within a "sweetbox."

The death of Maillefert resulted in the indictment of Capt. George W. Courson and Guard S. M. Higginbotham on first degree murder charges and their subsequent release under $5,000 bond each for trial in September.

A habeas corpus hearing, when the accused men sought release on bond, revealed how Maillefert was strangled to death by a chain around his neck, while being punished for attempting to escape from the convict camp. The youth was serving a nine-year term for robbery.

STATE AROUSED

The brutal details so aroused public sentiment in this state that Harry H. Wells, chairman of the State Road Department, ordered the convict camp closed. The convicts were being transferred today to the state penal farm at Raiford, Fla., for farm work, while the road building operations were suspended.

Political authorities were convinced the death of Maillefert, coming after other scandals in the convict camps, would terminate convict road work in Florida. It was pointed out that Gov.-elect David Scholtz, who enters the Governor's mansion on January 1, campaigned on a platform declaring against the use of convicts on state highways.

A number of prominent women's clubs meanwhile were organizing public sentiment to force

GARBAGE COST HERE SCORED

The Pittsburgh Real Estate Board today complained to Council that the City of Pittsburgh was spending too much money to collect garbage and rubbish. The board pointed out that the expense has increased from $432,000 in 1917, to $1,722,000 for 1932, whereas during the same period the population increase was from 575,000 to 670,000.

As a solution which would provide more competitive bidding the board suggested the 1933 contract be advertised immediately, thus allowing the winning bidder more time in which to prepare for the work.

Most of the garbage collecting in recent years has been done by the American Reduction Company.

Trolley Amputates Finger of Autoist

Samuel Ritkin, 41, 6326 Phillips avenue, Squirrel Hill, suffered the loss of a finger today when his hand caught between the door of his parked automobile and a passing street car in Fifth avenue, near Wood street.

Rutkin was treated by Dr. R. E. Brenneman, of the Jenkins Arcade, who was passing. He was later removed to his home.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(INS.)—The Couzens resolution for a private Senate investigation of loans made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, was approved today by the Senate.

1,000 Promised Jobs By Father Cox Party

One thousand unemployed "white collar" men will be paid $2 a day to expound, from door-to-door, the principles of the Jobless Liberty party, it was announced today by aides of Father James R. Cox, militant priest of Old St. Patrick's Church, probable candidate for president on the Jobless party ticket.

Soon after the plan had been launched, William G. Kling, "captain" of the group receiving applications for the jobs at 16 Wabash avenue, West End, was arrested, charged with violating a city ordinance in that he had no permit to operate an employment agency. He was detained at West End Police Station.

Answering advertisements in the classified columns today, hundreds of men flocked to five specified points in the city, where instructions were given them as to how to obtain the jobs.

Attorney Austin J. Staley, representing Father Cox, now touring Europe, explaining the plan, said:

"We are trying to give intelligent, unemployed people work at $2 a day. We expect to employ 1,000 persons in Allegheny County, and we have sufficient money to pay them for some time.

"We want intelligent people upon whom we can depend, to explain the principles of the Jobless Liberty party."

Names and addresses of all applicants were taken, preparatory to selection of those best fitted, it was said.

Those employed were to be authorized to receive contributions for the Jobless party if these were offered voluntarily.

Read Would Spank Wife Suing Claire Windsor

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—(AP.)—In a press interview, Alfred C. Read, Jr., Oakland broker, declared he will give his wife a "verbal spanking" if she does not withdraw her alienation of affections suit against Claire Windsor, actress.

Read supported the blonde actress' claim he "misled" her first into believing he was single, and later that he and his wife were living apart. He admitted he was at fault, but said he thought Mrs. Read should "kiss and make up."

Read again insisted his recent action in carrying his wife off into the mountains, for which she charged him with kidnaping, was inspired solely by a desire for reconciliation. The kidnaping charge was dismissed. Read said:

"I know they are calling me Lochinvar. You can take it from me, there will be no divorce and no trial of this alienation suit."

But Mrs. Read, society matron and the mother of two children, replied she would not consider dropping the suit. She asks $100,000 damages. She also said her divorce suit against Read would be pressed.

Read has signed a contract to appear in motion pictures in lead roles.

HUGE MELLON RICHES CITED IN TREASURY PROBE DEMAND

INQUIRY LOOMS AS G. O. P. ASKS FOR DELAY

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—A sweeping inquiry into the operations of the Treasury Department appeared probable today as a result of these developments at a hearing before the House Rules Committee:

1—Speaker Garner declared the Treasury opposed the investigation and charged "indefensible refunds of taxes to big corporations."

2—Acting Secretary of the Treasury Ballantine told the committee the Department did not oppose the inquiry but hoped it would be postponed until December.

3—Representative McFadden (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, whose original demand for the inquiry has gained Garner's support, charged the administration was using political pressure to stop the investigation.

4—Representative Patman (Dem.), of Texas, said that the personal fortune of former Secretary Mellon and his brother, R. B. Mellon, of Pittsburgh, had risen from two billions to almost eight billions during the Sevretary's incumbency.

SPEAKER GARNER SAID:

"There have been indefensible refunds of taxes to big corporations which the people know nothing about, enough to keep a committee busy for the next 25 or 50 years. The United States Steel Corporation thought it owed the government $60,000,000 more than it paid in taxes. It got in touch with the Treasury and found it didn't owe what it had figured was due. This all sounds very unreasonable to me. It is merely an illustration, on a large scale, of what has been done for many corporations."

SCORES DELAY

The administratoin's suggestion of postponing the inquiry until December, the Speaker characterized as "playing politics," and added:

"Whether it is good politics or not, you can decide, if Acting Secretary of the Treasury Ballantine or Mr. Snell, the Republican floor leader, want an investigation of the Treasury Department, the House of Representatives will give it. As a matter of fact, they won't want it any more in December than they do now. If you wait for the Treasury to want an investigation, there will never be one."

Ballantine said the investigation would divert the Bureau of Internal Revenue from administration of the new billion dollar tax law and would be costly. McFadden then retorted:

"Administration influence and political pressure is being used to stop this investigation."

WHITE HOUSE LINKED

He said that Representative Snell, of New York, Republican House leader, was attempting to work through the Rules Committee after a White House visit.

Representative Patman (Dem.), of Texas, told the Rules Committee "the country is demanding an investigation of the Treasury." He said:

"There never has been an audit of the Treasury in our history."

Patman said before the war, former Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and his brother, R. B. Mellon, were worth from $200,000,000 to $300,000,000.

When Mellon became Secretary of the Treasury they were worth $2,000,000,000, and when Mellon was named ambassador to England, they controlled property amounting to $7,900,000,000, he said.

"I wonder how it is possible for men to control that much wealth?"

Patman renewed his charge that a "presidential pardon" was given Mellon in his appointment as Ambassador while the House Judiciary Committee was considering Patman's impeachment resolution.

CANNON CHURCH BACKS HOOVER

LAKE JUNALUSKA, N. C., July 11.—(INS.)—Southern Methodism today aligned itself solidly behind the Republican administration in the approaching presidential election.

At the same time it declared war against the Democratic party in which "there will be no surrender, no retreat, no compromise," as a result of its adoption at the national convention in Chicago of a plank advocating repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

In the annual report of the Board of Temperance and Social Service of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, the Democratic party action was denounced as "indefensible infringement of the right of conscience" and "a gross insult to independent citizenship."

Written by Bishop James M. Cannon, Jr., militant dry and president of the board, the report flayed the Democratic liquor plank as "a distinct invasion of the moral realm."

It rang with high praises for the Republican party's prohibition plank which has been widely described as a "straddle" on the liquor question.

JULIET'S CRIES JAIL ROMEO

Admitting he climbed to the third-story bedroom of Pauline LaFace, 16, of 5911 Bryant street, to further his suit for the girl's hand, Nicholas Grosser, 20, of 3344 Beaconhill avenue, Dormont, was held for court on a charge of entering a building, at a hearing in Morals Court today.

Grosser told Magistrate Thomas D. Jones that being unable to see the girl or get into communication with her at any other time he chose the morning of July 4 to see her despite her own and her parent's objections.

He removed his shoes and climbed three stories over a porch to the girl's room.

Awakened by the noise of someone entering her room, Miss La Face screamed and her grandmother, Mrs. Pauline Cole, entered in time to see Grosser scamper down over the porch roof.

ROOSEVELT OFF FOR CRUISE

PORT JEFFERSON, N. Y., July 11.—(INS.)—Cheered by an enthusiastic crowd as "our next President," Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt sailed out on Long Island Sound on a 40-foot yawl this afternoon with three of his sons for a week's cruise along the New England coast. He said:

"I'd like to forget about politics for a few days, but I guess it can't be done."

Accompanied by Secretary of State Edward J. Flynn, and his youngest son, John, the Governor arrived at the dock shortly after noon. He motored down from his New York home after breakfasting with James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and his campaign manager.

Long before the Governor arrived the streets of this small village were jammed with people. State police experienced difficulty in preventing a traffic jam in the main street.

RAPS ANTI-DRY 'DISSENTERS'

NEW YORK, July 11.—(AP.)—Mrs. Charles A. Sabin, national chairman of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, could "find no comfort" today in the petition of Mrs. August Belmont and 61 other members dissenting from the executive committee's resolution urging support of Franklin D. Roosevelt for President.

Mrs. Sabin added that comfort probably could be found in it by the Women's Christian Temperance Union, the Anti-Saloon League, the Methodist Board of Prohibition, Temperance and Public Morals, and Bishop Cannon.

The 62 dissenting women issued a statement yesterday in which they said that "to make the attitude of the candidate toward control of the liquor traffic the sole test of his fitness for the presidency would be negation of our responsibilities as citizens."

Mayor Hague Plans Roosevelt Rally

NEW YORK, July 11.—(AP.)—The Times says Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City, stanch Smith backer, plans to give his support to the Roosevelt candidacy in a statewide demonstration at Seagirt, N. J., about the middle of August. The Times says:

"Gov. Roosevelt will be present and it is the intention of Mayor Hague to make Roosevelt Day in New Jersey this year even more of a demonstration than was Smith Day in 1928."

WAGNER SEEKS REPEAL ACTION

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(AP.)—Senator Wagner (Dem.), of New York, today moved in the Senate to discharge the Judiciary Committee from further consideration of his resolution to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment.

Wagner did not comment or press for consideration, merely entering the formal motion.

His measure provides for absolute repeal of the amendment, without suggesting any substitute or control alternative.

It was introduced February 1 and since has been held by the Judiciary Committee.

HOOVER SNUBS ROOSEVELT ON WATERWAYS

President Declared Victor in First Campaign Clash

By GEORGE E. DURNO
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—President Hoover appeared today to have scored in his first actual locking of horns with Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York. This, at least, was the consensus of those who weighed the political aspects of the tilt between the two candidates over negotiation of the St. Lawrence waterway treaty with Canada.

Behind the exchange of telegrams between the Republican and Democratic nominees, in which Roosevelt demanded the right to sit in on the negotiations to protect New York's interests, and Mr. Hoover politely advised the Governor to continue his fishing cruise because the matter wasn't any of his business, lay a lot of political maneuvering which may have considerable bearing on the campaign.

POLITICAL CHARGES

Gov. Roosevelt is charged by the Republicans with attempting to "muscle in" on the St. Lawrence negotiations at the last minute and thus making a direct bid for votes in the farm states of the Middle and Northwest and all of New England. These sections strongly favor the Lakes-to-the-Atlantic project, whereas New Yerk State has opposed it, favoring instead the all-America canal, which would utilize the Hudson River. It is therefore important to Roosevelt's candidacy that he be on record as in favor of the St. Lawrence waterway.

LAST-MINUTE TREATY

On the other hand, Democrats assert the President is going to dump a treaty on the Senate in its closing hours which cannot be ratified, but which will afford him a splendid talking point during the campaign. They charge he is going to concede to Canada a strict limitation of water diversion at Chicago, knowing full well the Illinois Senators will filibuster any effort to get the document ratified.

Canada has served notice on this government it will consent to no treaty that fails to curb Chicago's water diversion, and the Illinois interests have told the State Department just as plainly that they will block any treaty which does.

In any event, negotiation of a treaty is rapidly nearing a conclusion.

ADMIT SECRET DEBT PACT

suggested they return to Europe and endeavor to work out some equitable solution of the reparations problem, which he believed was the greatest outstanding barrier to world economic recovery.

Secret Debt Pact Work Of MacDonald, Herriot

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT
International News Service.

PARIS, July 11.—At no time was the United States informed officially that a secret "gentlemen's agreement" throwing the reperations problem into America's lap was being drafted, International News Service learned this afternoon.

The agreement was drawn up by Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald, of Britain, and Premier Edouard Herriot, of France, after the reparations conference was nearly wrecked by Chancellor Franz von Papen's withdrawal of his plan for a political and military alliance between Germany and France.

The secret pact, making the Lausanne treaty null and void unless the United States cancelled or drastically reduced war debts, was finally approved by Italy and Belgium, although these two nations originally wanted the agreement embodied openly in the Lausanne document.

DELICATE SITUATION

It was a delicate situation. All agreed it was dangerous to keep the agreement secret, but at length decided it would be impossible to make it public.

As a consequence, the secret agreement was written down in a letter addressed to Chancellor Von Papen and signed by the signatories of the Lausanne treaty.

Premiers MacDonald and Herriot went to work on the secret pact immediately after Von Papen returned to Lausanne from Berlin and reported that German public opinion would not consent to his projected military alliance.

The British Prime Minister saw the carefully-nursed conference falling about his head. Unable to induce Herriot to come to any settlement with Germany, he put forward the idea of a secret agreement. Prior to this action, he conferred with United States Ambassador Hugh Gibson and Norman Davis, expert on the American disarmament delegation, but there is no reason to believe he officially informed the United States of the plan.

BERLIN PLANS STATEMENT

BERLIN, July 11.—(INS.)—The German government is preparing a statement setting forth Germany's position with regard to the secret "gentlemen's agreement" reached at Lausanne, it was learned this afternoon.

Government spokesmen insisted that Chancellor Franz Von Papen had no knowledge whatever of this action by the former allied powers inseparably linking war debts and reparations.

This morning it is centered over Quebec, moving rather rapidly down the St. Lawrence Valley. Low pressure areas are now centered over the Rocky Mountain states, producing cloudiness and local showers over that section. High pressure is centered over the Upper Mississippi Valley and covers the entire central section. It is accompanied by clear skies and moderately cool weather.

River Conditions.

The rivers are falling slowly. Stage at Franklin is 1.1 feet; Lock No. 7 (Mon.), 12.3; Pittsburgh, 11.3; Dam No. 4, 8.5; No. 6, 8.1; No. 10, 8.4, and No. 12, 7.7. The dams are up.

Senate Committtee For Mine Quiz Vote

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(AP.)—The Senate Manufactures Committee today authorized a poll of its membership on a proposed investigation of conditions among coal miners in Harlan and Bell counties, Kentucky.

A sub-committee after hearings recommended such an inquiry. The proposal can be reported favorably to the Senate or killed by the poll authorized today without another formal meeting of the committee.

PINCHOT GIVEN AINEY'S DENIAL OF CHARGES

P.S.C. Chairman Balks At Questions by Governor

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, July 11.—William D. B. Ainey, chairman of the Public Service Commission, today categorically denied at a hearing before Gov. Pinchot that he had ever been paid any sums of money or had in any way been compensated by the late Thomas E. Mitten, president of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company.

Ainey's statement of denial, read by his attorney, John P. Connelly, was an answer to charges by A. A. Chapman, former secretary to Mitten, that Ainey at various times had been paid $150,000 by the traction chief, had been the recipient of medical attention paid for by Mitten, had been carried in a stock trading account, and had occupied hotel rooms for which Mitten paid.

GOVERNOR DEFIED

Connelly refused to permit questioning by Ainey by either the Governor, Attorney General William A. Schnader or Lawrence C. Hickman, attorney for Chapman. He challenged the Governor to lay the case before the Senate, which has the right of removal and appointment of Public Service Commissioners, and in effect denied the jurisdiction of the Governor to take any action.

In today's reply Ainey alleged:

That Chapman had visited him early this year and threatened to give the Governor "certain information" unless Ainey would help him regain a business which had been taken from him by "certain people," presumably connected with P. R. T.

That Chapman had offered to remain silent if paid $50,000 by P. R. T., and had reduced this demand to $20,000 when the first ultimatum was refused.

That Chapman's approach to him "appeared to be a blackmailing scheme," and that he had refused to treat with him.

That Chapman had attempted to sell canceled checks passing either between himself and Mitten or Chapman and A. B. Millar, secretary of the Pennsylvania Electric Association, cash for which allegedly was paid to Ainey.

That Chapman had only gone to the Governor after his visits to Ainey and his other negotiations had failed to be productive.

Gov. Pinchot, following today's hearing, may send the case to the Senate with a recommendation that Ainey be removed, publicly quash the Chapman charges as unproven, or merely submit the statement of Chapman and Ainey to the Senate for action.

SENATE QUIZ LOOMS

Should the Governor urge the removal of Ainey then the next step would be a Senatorial investigation, before which Chapman would insist that certain bank accounts, checks and papers of Mitten and P. R. T. be subpenaed.

Ainey in effect demanded that the case go to the Senate if it was be pushed.

In the paper read by Connelly, Ainey noted each charge made by Chapman, and in 19 separate paragraphs denied each individually after making a blanket assertion that he had never been the recipient of any favors from corporations or individuals during his 17 years on the Public Service Commission.

One section of the Chapman charges, renewed publicly before the Governor today, was that Ainey had been handed $6,000 on one occasion in hundred dollar bills, wrapped in brown paper. He said he had prepared the parcel himself, handed it to Mitten, and that Mitten had handed it to Ainey.

MYSTERY CHECKS

Another allegation was that checks had been made out to Millar, indorsed, then returned to Chapman to be cashed, the proceeds being turned over to Mitten. Chapman alleges this money also went to Ainey, though he had no direct evidence of its passage.

Today's hearing was held in the Governor's public reception room in the Capitol. Ainey appearing in response to an invitation of the Governor more than 10 days ago to answer the Chapman charges.

Two weeks ago the Governor laid the charges before the Senate Committee on Executive Nominations, but declined to go through with the public hearing in an attempt to force a Senate investigation. The Governor lacks the power to subpena books and papers as requested by Chapman.

If the Senate decides upon an investigation no report will be made to the special session, according to expectation here, it being felt that the session will have adjourned before the inquiry could be completed. In that event report would be made to the regular session next January.

Bonus Army 'Deserters' Guarded After Threats

A squad was detailed to the building after the veterans, making application for loans from the $100,000 fund appropriated by Congress, reported that other veterans disinclined to leave had threatened to "beat them up."

There were no reports of violence.

Meantime, Gen. Frank T. Hines, veterans' administrator, told newspapermen he had informed President Hoover that only 802 men out of the thousands of veterans here had received railroad tickets home.

Hines added he told the President "employment is the real solution of this problem." Hines said:

"I have looked these veterans over, and there are some mighty good men among them. When we issue them transportation to their homes we are making a very real effort to get them jobs there when they get back."

Hines said a check showed 7,500 veterans here, with about 475 arrivals since the transportation fund was appropriated.

In a radio appeal tonight from Newark, N. J., he planned to ask for recruits and provisions.

Applause Won by Negro Baritone in 'Aida' Role

CLEVELAND, July 11.—(AP.)—Applauded by more than 5,000 operagoers, Jules Bledsoe, Negro baritone, last night became the first man of his race ever to sing the role of Amenasro in Verdi's "Aida" on an American opera stage.

Bledsoe, famous as the old man river of "Show Boat," had sung in Aida in London, but never before in the United States. With only 24 hours' notice to prepare the Negro baritone gave a remarkable portrayal of the captive Ethiopian king and won for himself a long round of applause.

Alida Vane repeated previous successes in the role of Aida, as did Pasquale Ferrara as Rhadames. Edwina Eustis as Amneris, Lester Miller as the high priest and Armund Stevens Ra[illegible] also gave excellent performances.

INDIGNATION OVER 'TORTURE' DEATH CLOSES PENAL CAMP

KILLING OF BOY ROUSES ALL FLORIDA

Drive Made to Bring End to System of Convict Labor

Doyle E. Carlton into abolishing all convict labor camps at once. The movement drew support from labor leaders, who aside from their horror over the death of Maillefert, denounced the convict road camps on economic grounds.

INQUISITION RIVALED

The story of Maillefert's death, as revealed at the hearing given Courson and Higginbotham, rivaled the tortures of the Spanish inquisition. The youth, weakened by continued punishment and a desperate effort to escape, was placed within a tiny shack, called a "sweat box." A heavy chain, lowered from the roof of the box, was tightened about his neck, so he had to stand upright — or strangle.

The stocks on his feet prevented any movement of his legs. He hung within this box—scarcely larger than a doghouse—until he fainted from exhaustion. As his body relaxed, he was choked to death by the chain.

A follow convict, Arthur Swartz, testified Maillefert told him, after being placed in the box:

"My neck is swelling. I don't think I can make it until morning."

Another convict, Cleo Drew, said Courson threatened to keep the youth trussed up in the torture box "until Christmas or until he dies."

BOY WITHOUT FOOD

The medical examiner, Dr. R. R. Killinger, testified Maillefert died of strangulation. He also said the boy hadn't eaten anything for at least 12 hours before he died.

Other convicts described the punishment inflicted on Maillefert when the boy complained of being too sick to work on the road in a broiling sun. The punishment, ordered by Courson, consisted of stripping the boy and imprisoning him in a 60-gallon whisky barrel. A hole was cut in the top of the barrel, the end knocked out. Then the barrel was thrust over the boy's head; laths were nailed beneath his chin and behind his head, so he couldn't free himself from the barrel. It weighed 45 pounds.

This punishment was meted him two days before he died. A prisoner within the barrel, he was thrust into the "sweat box" over night. In the morning he was so weak other convicts had to roll him out of the "sweat box." But some time that day the boy chewed away the lath beneath his chin, so he could slide out of the barrel. Then he made an effort to escape. He was soon captured with the aid of bloodhounds.

FATAL TORTURE

The testimony then revealed he was given the final "torture," which resulted in his death.

The hearing brought out that the use of a barrel, the use of stocks, the use of a chain, were all illegal. The law permitted only the "sweat box"—a box six feet by three, in which a man could be imprisoned over night. All the other forms of punishment meted out by Courson were outside the law.

County Detective W. H. Gasque, who investigated the case and forced the indictment of Courson and Higginbotham, declared he had never before seen such torture apparatus. He said:

"I read about this torture stuff happening a hundred years ago, but I never dreamed it could happen right here in America in this day and age.

"With the chain around his neck and the stocks on his feet, that boy never had a chance. The minute his body slumped, he choked to death."

"Would he have strangled just the same if he fell asleep?"

"Certainly."

NOVEL DEFENSE

The defense raised by Courson at the habeas corpus hearing was interesting. He said he was punishing the boy in an "effort to make a man out of him." He contended the boy had committed suicide in the "sweatbox" by deliberately stranging himsef.

The guard captain quoted Maillefert as saying:

"You might just as well kill me for I'd rather be dead than for it to be known I have served a term."

Courson said he told the boy:

"Jersey, the state of Florida didn't send you here for me to kill you. They sent you here for me to take care of you and make an effort to make you mend your ways and make a man out of you.

"When I told him that, he said: 'If you don't kill me, you're a yellow dog.'"

Courson said he placed Maillefert in the barrel to "keep him from escaping." When the youth chewed his way out of the heavy barrel, Courson said he asked the boy:

"What will I do to you next?"

"And he said: 'You can't do a thing to me but kill me.'"

The guard captain called a number of trusty convicts in his defense. All the convicts testified Courson had treated the youth well and said the boy had killed himself.

The guard captain and his aide were released under bond, because the state failed to prove they had "premeditated" the killing of Maillefert. The "premeditation" element is necessary in first-degree murder charges.

Florida 'Torture' Held 'Intolerable Brutality' By Penal Officers Here

Dr. William T. Root, noted psychologist of the criminal mind, and a trustee at the Western Pennsylvania Penitentiary, today branded the Florida sweatbox practice "intolerable brutality, if the reported facts are true."

Condemning the "sweatbox" and other forms of physical punishment of prisoners, Dr. Root declared there was no excuse for barbarity. He said:

"There is no physical punishment used in the Western Penitentiary—there has been none in the 10 years that I have been there. And the only relics of such barbarity that I know of in Pennsylvania are the walled-up cells in Rockview, which were never used.

"They were described as dungeons, where a prisoner could be tortured without anyone outside knowing about it. But when Dr. Ellen Potter, then Secretary of Welfare, discovered them, they were never put in use. She had them cemented up, and they remain that way.

'SWEATBOX' SCORED

"There is no excuse for the sweatbox. This Florida affair, if the reported facts are true, is intolerable brutality. It is a substitute for the lash, and William B. Cox, of New York, the world's authority, says it is far worse than the lash.

"There is no reason for such barbarity. If a prisoner is insane—and about all the trouble prisoners cause come from mental cases—he should be treated as psychopathic.

"Brutality to an insane man is barbarous. We send our prisoners so afflicted to Rockview. The only physical force used on them is to place them in a cell.

"When one of the troublesome 2 per cent becomes obnoxious, he is placed in a cell block by himself. We have found out that inside a prison, 98 per cent of the prisoners can be handled much as are high school or college students, and with the same result. They give cheerful co-operation."

VIEWS OF ASHE

Common sense should have told the Florida prison officials that the "barrel cell" and the "sweat box" were inhuman, Stanley P. Ashe, warden of the Western Penitentiary, said today. He added:

"Our method of punishing troublesome prisoners is isolation. There is no physical punishment in Pennsylvania—and there hasn't been in my memory.

"You would suppose that prison guards and officials would have enough common sense to know that brutality is wrong."

Robert Braun, superintendent of the Allegheny County Workhouse and former Sheriff, added his condemnation of the "sweat box" killing, declaring the sheer brutality of the affair amazed him. He said:

"Someone should be punished. I don't say the guards, either. The head of the prison camp should be called in and made responsible, since the guards were possibly forced, or at least ordered, to handle the prisoners in such a way.

OBSOLETE METHODS

"I was surprised to hear such obsolete methods of punishment were still in use in the South. Enlightened prisoner treatment, I supposed, was universal.

"We treat men well here, but I have found they don't like to be fussed over—they like to be treated as men. We have no physical punishment for our inmates."

Frank L. Duggan, business leader and a trustee of the Western Penitentiary, commented:

"That's medieval torture. There is a modern way, and a much better way, which is to care for those who go to prison so that when they are returned to society they will be better men."

Cuban Police Head's Slayers Identified

HAVANA, July 11.—(AP.)—Jaime Arias, a boy who said he was lying upon the sea wall near by and saw the slaying of Miguel Calvo, former head of the Cuban secret police last week, today picked out Archibald and Ramon Durland, whose father was an American, as the occupants of the green automobile from which Calvo was shot. Their brother, Addison, lives in New York, police said.

The two men were arrested Saturday night.

WORLD FLIERS TO TRY AGAIN

MOSCOW, July 11.—(AP.)—James Mattern and Bennett Griffin, world fliers, who were forced down at Borisov, Russia, Thursday, plan another try, perhaps later this summer.

The two fliers, grimy, weary and disappointed, stepped off the train yesterday on which they came from Borisov, shook hands with a few Americans who had gathered at the station to welcome them and dashed for a bath tub.

Later they told of the wreck of their attempt to beat the record of Wiley Post ad Harold Gatty and the wreck of their plane in a peat bog near Borisov, half way between here and Berlin.

Prison Farm Torture Recalls Peonage Case

Flogging of Youth Aroused Nation 10 Years Ago

NEW YORK, July 11.—(Universal.)—Florida peonage conditions and use of the whipping post, which had been thought ended, first came to light with the celebrated case of Martin Tabert, North Dakota farmer boy, who started out to "see the world" in 1921, but died early the next year in a prison lumber camp after stealing a train ride.

Tabert's death was at first ascribed to "fever and other complications." Then it was learned he had been beaten.

For several months his death meant little to anyone besides his family. Then, suddenly, the attention of an aroused country was focused on his end and conditions which had brought it about.

STATES NEAR BREAK

Strained relations were threatened between North Dakota and Florida; the lumber company where Tabert worked eventually was forced to pay $20,000 to Tabert's family and the Florida Legislature in 1923 abolished the lash in prison camps.

In the Tabert case a Higginbotham also figured.

This was Thomas Walter Higginbotham, camp "whipping boss" who was tried and convicted on charges of first degree murder because of young Tabert's death. Thomas Higginbotham secured another trial, however, and was acquitted, this time of second degree murder.

At Thomas Higginbotham's trial in 1923 it was testified an agreement existed by which the arresting sheriff profited from the arrest of every prisoner sent to the lumber camp.

MONEY RETURNED

Tabert's family wired him $75 when they learned that he was in difficulties and under arrest on a charge of vagrancy, which accompanied the train ride. The money was sent to Tabert, care of Sheriff J. R. Jones in Tallahassee.

Letter and money was returned to the Taberts as "unclaimed." However, with the further scrawled remark on the envelope, "Party gone."

The Taberts presumed their son had secured his release. In any event they had no way of communicating with him. They next got word from the lumber company of his death.

AIMEE INJURED, OUSTER LOOMS FOR HUTTON

Evangelist Collapses At Balm Verdict, Dave Defiant

A jury decided Myrtle Joan St. Pierre, attractive, twice-married nurse, was entitled to $5,000 in her $200,000 breach of promise suit against the husband and Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist. The verdict caused the evangelist, already ill, to collapse, fall and suffer an announced concussion of the brain, and today members of her Angelus Temple congregation were reported seeking to oust Hutton. But he told reportetrs:

"Let them try to oust me. My wife is the head of that temple, but, of course, she ought to handle anything like that if it comes up. So far as that St. Pierre woman is concerned, she can't get a cent, because I haven't even a red one."

The evangelist took note of the reported revolt among her followers by issuing a brief statement, which read:

"I certainly am going to stand by my husband."

The fact that all was not harmony in Angelus Temple came to light during the concluding days of the trial of Miss St. Pierre's suit when, on leaving the courthouse, she was presented with large baskets of flowers by persons who said they were members of Mrs. Hutton's congregation.

Hutton said he had heard talk against him in the temple.

Following the jury's verdict Saturday night, the choir singer told his attorney he wanted them to appeal the case. He declared he was "broke" and Miss St. Pierre may need more than human help to collect the $5,000 the jury awarded her.

CLARA TO BOSS REX BELL FILM

HOLLYWOOD, July 11.—(AP.)—Clara Bow, erstwhile "It" girl of screendom, came to town yesterday from the California-Nevada ranch home of her husband, Rex Bell, and announced that she planned to become a motion picture director, producing a film starring her husband.

But before that, she said, she herself will star in a "come-back" picture, work on which is to be started early in August. She said:

"Directing won't be anything new to me. All the pictures I have made I helped in the direction. The deal for the Rex Bell picture is now being made with the producers."

She had still another announcement, and boasted:

"I've lost 18 pounds. Diet and massage did it—and hard work. I do all the cooking on the ranch, featuring angel food cake."

BANDIT SLAYER SHOT IN CHASE

SOUTH BEND, Ind., July 11.—(INS.)—James Storey, 25, of St. Paul, Minn., wanted for slaying Jay N. Davis, town marshal of North Baltimore, O., and for kidnaping John Hova, of Toledo, O., and Hova's 9-year-old nephew, William Kressin, of Dearborn, Mich., was shot and captured by police here today.

The capture followed a fight with the alleged bandit at a downtown telegraph office, the prisoner's reckless dash from the bertillon room of the City Hall, and his spectacular leap from a high bridge into the St. Joseph River, where police bullets struck him down.

The prisoner was pulled out of the river and rushed to a hospital. His condition was not known, but he was believed to be wounded seriously.

Governor General and De Valera Meet Over Snubs

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, July 11.—(AP.)—Governor General James McNeill and President Eamon de Valera, who have not spoken to each other for months, met this afternoon for a conference which generally was expected to be a prelude to Mr. McNeill's resignation.

Last night the Governor General made public a demand that the President apologize to him for what he considered personal snubs by members of the Free State government. He threatened to resign if the apology were not forthcoming.

The snubs, he said, began when Sean O'Kelly, vice president of the Free State executive council, and Frank Aiken, minister of defense, walked out of a ball at the French embassy last April as soon as the governor general entered.

EAMON De VALERA

A letter from President De Valera, published last night by McNeill, said De Valera considered the incident "unfortunate and regrettable," but added:

"Further than this I am unable to go."

neighbors what they have seen and learned about the gratitude of the world's "richest country."

THE SO-CALLED suicide of Smith Reynolds, twenty-year-old youth worth twenty millions, may develop into a celebrated case. Since he was supposed to have shot himself to death, as he lay on a couch in the house of a friend, fiingerprints and bloodstains have been found on the door of a bathroom, adjoining the room in which the body was found.

Even in death twenty millions may exert influence, and newspaper reporters were excluded from the official investigation, which diminishes the probability of the truth being revealed. But there is at least a chance.

A LAW HAS been passed and signed by the President, making it a federal crime, punishable by 20 years' imprisonment or $5,000 fine, to mail letters threatening to kidnap or demanding ransom.

Passing a law is easy, catching criminals, kidnapers especially, seems difficult. Perhaps the $5,000 fine will help.

Our most successful work against criminals has been done in hunting down income tax evasions by gangsters. Where money is concerned, we show efficiency.

BAKER REVEALS BRITISH FIGHT ON PERSHING

NEW YORK, July 11.—(AP.) — Newton D. Baker, President Wilson's Secretary of War, has revealed that then Premier David Lloyd George, of Great Britain, at one time apparently desired the removal of Gen. John J. Pershing as commander-in-chief of the American Expeditionary Force in the World War.

In a letter to Col. Lloyd C. Griscom, former liaison officer between Gen. Pershing and the British war office, Baker wrote that the war-time premier complained the American Army was "perfectly useless" to the British forces and was on the verge of asking for Gen. Pershing's recall.

BAKER VICTORIOUS

Col. Griscom, now publisher of the Nassau Daily Star, commented in that newspaper:

"That Mr. Lloyd George failed actually to make this demand was perhaps due to the spirited and masterly manner in which Mr. Baker met the first onslaught."

At the conclusion of a dinner in London in 1918, Mr. Baker wrote:

"Mr. Lloyd George, with vehement emphasis, complained that the American army in France was of no service to the British at all in spite of the fact that Great Britain had stripped necessary empire services of ships in order to carry American troops to France, and that they had scarcely gotten to France before Gen. Pershing pulled them away from the British and took them into his own custody on another part of the line.

"This description was most vehement, resulting in the final declaration of Lloyd George that so far as Great Britain was concerned the American army was perfectly useless and the ship service devoted to bring them over wasted."

CHARGES DENIED

Mr. Baker replied that from his own observation on the front lines he was convinced that:

"The American troops were at least detaining many German divisions which might otherwise be added to the concentration against the French and British."

He countered with an offer to discontinue the transportation of American soldiers on British ships and move only such forces as could be carried on American vessels. The Premier changed the subject and the matter was not discussed again.

The next morning, Mr. Baker recalled, Lord Reading, former viceroy to India, said with "diplomatic casualness" that:

"Mr. Lloyd George asked me to say to you that you should think no more about the matter which he raised for discussion last night at dinner."

A few seconds before Reitenbaugh leaped, Miss Helene Brotzman, of Phoenixville, his pupil, made a 'chute jump from the same plane, landing safely.

IT'S A FAR CRY FROM THE TOWN CRIER to "The Globe Trotter"

Far different is the modern news service from that of years ago when the populace depended on the town crier for what scant news came their way—weeks-old news, half fact and that half a so highly colored product of his imaginative interpretation as to scarcely resemble the original occurences.

The demands for news today are far more exacting. Speed, accuracy and complete coverage are essential. Compare "The Globe Trotter" of today with his ancient counterpart. Now every modern agency is coordinated to gather the facts of every event of interest and importance—and to bring them to you to read in this newspaper, to hear on your radio and see and hear in life-like fashion on the screen of your favorite picture theatre in—

LIBBY HOLMAN TO TAKE STAND IN PROBE

Miss Holman revealed the date and place of the marriage at the first session of a secret inquest held by Coroner W. N. Dalton behind closed doors at Reynolds.

SALIENT POINTS

So far as has been made public, about all that has been disclosed by the investigation here has been these salient points:

1—Reynolds was shot about 1 a. m., Wednesday morning while on a sleeping porch adjoining his wife's bedroom. He was carried to a hospital unconscious and died there at dawn without making a statement.

2—In the house at the time besides the household servants were Mrs. Reynolds: Blanche Yurka, New York actress, who was visiting Mrs. Reynolds and coaching her for a new play; Albert Walker, of Winston-Salem, life-long friend of Reynolds and his secretary, and Raymond Kranrer, of Flushing, L. I., who was Reynolds tutor.

3—The night before, Reynolds had given a party in celebration of the 21st birthday of C. G. Hill, a Winston-Salem friend, and his guests did not leave until midnight.

4—A towel, apparently stained with blood, was found in the bathroom adjoining Mrs. Reynolds' room. Bloody fingerprints were on the bathroom floor.

5—A pistol, from which one shot had been fired, was on the floor of the sleeping porch.

Mrs. Reynolds told the jury her mind was a blank in respect to the time from Monday, about 11 p. m., until late Wednesday, except for a "flash" in which she saw Reynolds with the pistol to his head, heard him call her name and saw him fall.

She gave no explanation for this lapse of memory.

TWO ORDERED HELD

As a result of the evidence presented it, the Coroner's jury ordered Walker and Mrs. Reynolds held as material witnesses. He was lodged in jail and she has been under guard in her apartment in Reynolda. Miss Yurka was requested not to leave Winston-Salem.

The fingerprints found on the bathroom door have been turned over to an expert and if they are sufficiently clear will be compared with those of all persons who were in the house the night of the tragedy.

As it faced the case today, the Coroner's jury, as well as could be gathered from officials, was without any particular reason to believe Reynolds' death was other than suicide, but has been unable to learn why Reynolds, young, and apparently without any cares, should have taken his life.

Bullet Hole Found In Libby's Cottage

PORT WASHINGTON, N. Y., July 11.—(AP.)—Mrs. Daniel A. Murdock said today she found a bullet hole in a dining room table in the Long Island house which she rented to Libby Holman, widow of Smith Reynolds, last summer. She said:

"The course of the bullet was definitely shown across the table top. I asked my agent to suggest to Miss Holman that she pay for repairs. She readily agreed."

Mrs. Murdock said she had not seen Miss Holman since the discovery of the bullet hole and had never spoken to her about it. Miss Holman did not explain to the agent how the table came to be damaged, she said.

Miss Holman rented the house, in the Spanish bungalow colony near here, for the summer. Smith Reynolds occupied a cottage near the actress and near an airport where he kept his plane. Mrs. Murdock said:

"Everyone seemed to like Miss Holman. She was a respectable and charming tenant. Mr. Reynolds was sometimes considered a bit erratic. Once he drove his car right into the water near where he kept his yacht."

Mrs. Peabody Weds Harvard Educator

BROOKLINE, Mass., July 11.—(AP.)—Mrs. Virginia Chandler Peabody, widow of Dr. Francis Weld Peabody, famed surgeon and Harvard professor, was married to Dr. George C. Shattuck, a former teaching associate of her late husband.

The ceremony took place at Rock Gardens, Dr. Shattuck's estate. Mrs. Shattuck is the former Virginia Chandler, of Chicago. Dr. Shattuck is a member of the Harvard faculty.

Unidentified Man Killed on Railroad

Police today were seeking to identify a man struck and killed by a Pennsylvania Railroad freight train near Cresson last night.

The man was described as about 45 years old, 5 feet 4 inches tall, with closely cropped black hair and mustache. He wore a brown suit, white striped shirt and grey cap.

Avalon Asks Lights On River Highway

Ninety-five residents of Avalon whose homes front on the Ohio River boulevard, have begun a campaign for installation of stop lights and better policing to prevent accidents. Citing two persons have been killed and many injured within the borough, the 95 petitioned Council for immediate action, in conjunction with the county commissioners.

'Torch Singer' One Who Croons 'Blues'

NEW YORK, July 11.—(AP.)—What is a "torch singer?"

One explanation is that the phrase is based on an old saying that when a pilted lover is pining for the loved one he is "carrying a torch" for her.

Songs designated as torch songs are blues, generally bewailing lost loves.

Freeport Man Held In Woman's Death

Homer A. Hewitt, of Freeport, was held on a manslaughter charge at an inquest in Tarentum today, in the death of Terezia Adamcik, 38, Tarentum, May 27. She was struck by an automobile driven by Hewitt two days previously, the testimony disclosed.

Find Body of Man Missing 17 Years

ESTES PARK, Col., July 11.—(AP.)—Disappearance of the Rev. Thornton R. Sampson, Austin (Tex.) educator and friend of Woodrow Wilson, on a fishing trip 17 years ago was believed solved yesterday with the finding of a skeleton at the foot of a cliff near Odessa Lake.

Park officials said it was apparent the educator had fallen over the cliff.

Rockefellers Honor Saratoga Soldiers

ALBANY, N. Y., July 11.—(AP.)—The Rockefeller Family Association, Inc., has received permission to erect a marker on the battlefield of Saratoga in honor of eight members of the family who fought in the battle as Continental soldiers.

The association plans to dedicate a boulder bearing a bronze plate on October 15.

SHAW TELLS OF RISE -:- Irish Playwright on "Rungs of Ladder" -:- DANCE MUSIC ON AIR

U. S. Prosecutor to Talk About Dry Cases On Radio Tonight

George Bernard Shaw, noted critic and playwright, tells the story of his rise to international prominence in the literary world when he appears as guest speaker during a rebroadcast from London today at 4:20. The address, scheduled for 20 minutes, is heard over a Columbia chain, including WJAS.

The famous Irish dramatist, whose salutation in a program from London to America several months ago, "Hello, all you dear boobs," established a new high in originality on the air, tells his story as one of a series of addresses by prominent Britons entitled "Rungs of the Ladder."

Mr. Shaw

Although he has consistently refused to visit America, Shaw frequently has been heard here in rebroadcast talks, notably that at a dinner given Prof. Albert Einstein in London, his Joan of Arc quincentenary address, and a series immediately following his tour of Russia.

Raymond D. Evans, assistant United States district attorney, gives a concise view of the prohibition question as he sees it during a special radio talk from WJAS tonight from 6:30 to 6:45. Mr. Evans has based his address on his observations and experiences in connection with prohibition cases in Federal Court.

The harmonies and dance melodies of Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians, appearing at the Willows, are scheduled for a half hour on WWSW at 8:30. The orchestra, playing a one-night stand here, comes from an engagement at Castle Farms, Cincinnati. Beginning Tuesday night, the music of Johnny Johnson and his Statler Pennsylvanians, popular radio and recording orchestra which replaces "Sleepy" Hall at the Oakmont pleasure spot, is heard nightly over WWSW.

Program Pointers

Songs of the harvest, dedicated to the great wheat lands of North Dakota, are featured on the Parade of States presentation with Theodore Webb, baritone, as guest artist, and Erno Rapee's concert orchestra over WCAE tonight at 9:30. Webb has chosen "The Builder," with music by Charles Wakefield Cadman set to the words of James W. Foley, North Dakota poet, as his solo. Another composer, Henry A. Ball, is represented by "Little Old Sod Shanty," a pioneer song, with a chorus of voices, and orchestral tribute is paid to the Sioux Indians, who ruled the state before the white men.

Mr. Rapee

A story based on the discovery by the men of a mining camp that one of their mining engineers was an attractive girl, rather than a middle-aged Amazon, is told by the Old Ranger during the Death Valley Days dramatization on KDKA at 8:30.

Musical extremes, including the oriental fantasy, "Hindustan," and the modern "Manhattan Serenade," are harmoniously blended during the Contented program on KDKA tonight at 8.

Richard Crooks, Metropolitan Opera Company tenor, includes "Song of Songs," by Moya and the "Flower Song" from "Carmen" on his program with William Merrigan Daly's orchestra over WCAE at 8:30 o'clock.

John E. Bakeless, author and former managing editor of the Forum Magazine, opens a new weekly series of discussions on current events as a feature of the Women's Radio Review on WCAE tomorrow at 3:30 p. m.

"Surprise Package," a 30-minute variety show on WJAS at 7:15, presents Freddie Rich, conducting the Columbia dance orchestra; Irene Beasley, contralto; Evan Evans, baritone; Little Jack Little and the Four Eton Boys, quartet.

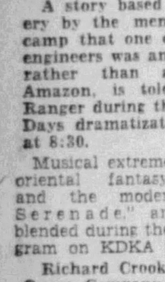
Fan Fare

Disappointment lay in wait for Kathryn Parsons, Columbia's "Girl O' Yesterday," the other day when Gertrude Ederle broadcast from an aquaplane . . . She used her speedboat to witness the event, keeping up with Mrs. Guy Lombardo's, which was towing the swimmer . . . but just as the broadcast began, her motor stalled and she had to be towed ashore . . . Julia Sanderson has decided the best place to spend her three-day vacation each week is right in New York . . . She says she can keep cooler and more comfortable and work better there . . . Veronica Wiggins goes on vacation soon to return to the air August 5.



Miss Parsons

Arthur Allen's 84-year-old mother, who for many years insisted that her son would be better off in business than on the stage, has become one of his biggest boosters . . . Recently she sent for 45 of his pictures—to distribute among the neighbors.

A more informal note, with a change of continuity style, has been adopted for the cigaret quarter-hours with Norman Brokenshire, Ruth Etting, the Boswells and Alex Gray . . . Miss Etting's appearances now have a background of the "situation" type, with frivolity for the Boswells and a lyrical touch for Gray. The suggestion was Brokenshire's.

Jimmy Wallington and his friend, Jack Skinner, are disputing the question of who should be captain of their 40-foot yawl. They've taken ballots and ballots, but every time each gets one vote.

When Olsen and Johnson made their debut with Rudy Vallee the other night visitors were allowed in the studios for the first time in months . . . The comedians appeared in costume for the occasion—Olsen in voluminous mustard-colored trousers and a skimpy sky-blue jacket, and Johnson in a suit of clashing stripes, mostly red.

Pittsburgh society will witness the broadcasting of an hour program featuring a group of WCAE artists including the Lawson Sisters, Betty Cruikshank, Paul Gannon, Richard Koch, Raymond Griffin and a 15-piece orchestra directed by David Levin over WCAE from the Edgeworth Country Club, Sewickley, tomorrow night at 8:30.

U.S. EXPLORER'S BODY FOUND

ST. JOHNS, N. F., July 11.—(AP.)—A body, believed to be that of Herman Kohler or Fred Connell, of New Jersey, who started a canoe trip into the barren Labrador-Quebec Peninsula in July of last year, was reported discovered by Indians on the banks of Georges River, Labrador, in messages reaching here today from Hopedale, Labrador.

There was no word of the circumstances in its discovery.

Kohler was from Orange, N. J., and Connell from Glen Ridge. They entered the Kokosoak River at Chimo last July, traveling toward its source. They were accompanied by Jim Martin, a Canadian northlands veteran, who was acting as guide.

Little anxiety was felt when no news of them was received for several months. The country is wild and there are almost no means of communication.

The last word from them came on February 15 when a five months' old message was received. It had been carried over Labrador by Indians and dog teams and reached St. Johns by radio.

The message said the explorers were at the upper reach of the Georges River, that they were well and were headed for Davis Inlet.

WOMAN'S KILLER FAILS IN SUICIDE

ESSINGTON, Pa., July 11.—(AP.)—William H. Briscoe, 40-year-old Philadelphia drug salesman, probably will live to stand trial for the slaying of Mrs. Mayme Conyers, 30, a divorcee, on her schooner at a yacht club wharf Saturday night.

He lay in a hospital today with a bullet wound in his head, self-inflicted after slaying Mrs. Conyers and wounding Joseph Julian, skipper of the boat.

One theory advanced for the shooting was a dispute over the ownership of the schooner, acquired from the government by Mrs. Conyers.

Youth, 20, Confesses Slaying of Father

BORADALBIN, N. Y., July 11.—(INS.)—George Sleezer, 20, was held today on a charge of murdering his father, Isaac Sleezer, 70, after he confessed the crime, according to police.

The aged man's body was found in a well on his isolated farm. George Sleezer was said by police to have admitted beating him to death with a hammer when the father refused him money.

Y Members to Hear Canoe Expert Talk

Edward Smith, who has made many canoe trips in the Hudson Bay country, will give the members of the Downtown Y. M. C. A. a first-hand demonstration on how to handle a canoe in the pool this evening. Smith will give the demonstration in the interest of water safety.

3 Killed, 9 Hurt As Autos Collide

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By SALLY MARTIN

Can True Love Be Smothered By Too Many Meetings?

Should sweethearts "just live for each other"—and spend every single evening together?

Freda thinks they should; but Louis thinks that maybe it'll wear the bloom off the peach and cool their love if they do.

So the battle is on, with Freda moaning:

"You just don't love me or you'd want to see me oftener than three times a week," and Louis insisting:

"That's not so! I do love you, but—"

Dear Sally Martin:

I wish you would tell me what you think about my case, and about the idea I have.

I have been going with Freda for the past year. She loves me, and I love her and we expect to get married some day; but lately we have been disagreeing a great deal.

The cause of the disagreement is how often I should—or shouldn't—come over. She wants to see me oftener than I think wise. I told her that if we were together too much we would tire of each other, but she thinks that idea is all wet.

She insists that if I really loved her, regardless of how often I saw her, I wouldn't ever tire of her.

Well, last Saturday I phoned her. Her mother said she had gone to the movies and that she wouldn't be home till late. For a change I called up another girl and made an appointment for that evening, just to have something to do. As I was about to leave home to keep this date, she phoned me and asked me to come over. I told her about this other appointment which I made when I thought she was going to be busy, and before I could say another word she hung up on me.

THINKS TWICE IS ENOUGH

I wonder if you would tell me what's what, in your opinion. I do love her and I want to keep on loving her, and because of that I don't want to see her more than about twice a week.

Don't you agree with me that if I saw her three or four times a week we would tire of each other, when we can't get married right off? I've seen so many couples get a terrible crush on each other, spend all their time together for a while and then blow up. I don't want that to happen with Freda and me. She thinks now that I simply don't really care for her, even though she has made up with me for the other night. What's your idea? LOUIS.

CAN BE SMOTHERED

My idea is your idea, Louis. I think true love can be smothered out by too much huddling; that frequently, healthy absence does make the heart grow fonder.

As a matter of fact, a "love" which can't bear to be separated" isn't really love at all. It's camouflaged cowardice. We want the other fellow around because we haven't learned how to face life alone. We haven't learned how to amuse ourselves or solve our own problems, so we select someone else to fill the void. A relationship like that is not beautiful. It is tragic and it will wreck any lives involved in it.

Lovers must live as well as love. True love doesn't make us one, and it shouldn't make us one. We are still separate individuals, with separate responsibilities and interest, and if we wish to keep love fresh we should keep love free.

That's my idea, but maybe it isn't your idea, stranger. So let's hear your advice to Freda and Louis.

Imagination Is Often the Keynote of One's Life, Says Fay King

JUST AS IMAGINATION OFTEN EXAGGERATES IN A FAVORABLE DIRECTION SO CAN IT MAKE BITTERNESS SEEM DOUBLY SO I SEE IT ALL PERFECTLY!
I CAN JUST SEE MYSELF ADMIRED AND APPLAUDED BY EVERYONE!
IF FACT DOES NOT PROVE AS PERFECT AS OUR IMAGINATION WE SUFFER FROM DISAPPOINTMENT
FAY KING

By FAY KING.

Imagination plays a great part in our lives and is often the keynote of our content or discontent.

We hardly make a move without using our imagination. If we have an appointment we imagine ourselves on the way and seeing those we expect to meet long before we are ready to start.

In pleasant matters our imagination is always of a most favorable turn, so that we are sometimes disappointed because actual events do not come up to the rosy imagination we made of them.

In unpleasant matters our imagination is apt to betray us into uncalled for bitterness.

Reason must be the unfailing brake which controls imagination, for imagination ill prepares us for sound judgment, and can influence us too much.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland

Neuralgia Is a Painful Curse of Mankind.

One of the sweetest of all promises is recorded in Revelations where John the Divine describes what he saw in the new heaven and the new earth. "God shall wipe away all tears," he says, "neither shall there be any more pain."

Dr. Copeland

Pain is the curse of mankind. Mental pain, physical pain—it matters not—destroys happiness. "Man is born unto trouble, as the sparks fly upward," said poor old Job, and he knew all about it. Of all man's troubles pain comes first.

We get our pains through our nerves, the telegraph wires that notify us of our ailments. The pain may be due to trouble in the nerve itself. That sort of pain is called "neuralgia," or "neuritis" if there is actual inflammation of the nerve.

In neuralgia there is no swelling or other sign of inflammation, no fever and usually no sensitiveness to pressure. There is localized pain, perhaps, or there may be vague and scattered symptoms of discomfort.

In neuritis the pain may be like that caused by neuralgia, but on pressure or even light touch the pain is greatly increased. There is likely to be loss of function of the part involved, and sometimes there is more or less fever.

It must be kept in mind that pain may be reflex in its nature. The seat of trouble may be somewhere else than in the spot where it seems to be located. For example, there may be pain in the sole of the foot when its exciting cause is in the middle of the body.

There are special forms of neuralgia. For instance, when the pain is in the forehead or elsewhere in the head, it is called headache, yet there may not be a thing wrong with the brain, its coverings, the bones of the head or with the scalp. Instead, the pain may be due to eye strain, indigestion, localized infection, excessive fatigue or some other general cause.

Here is a thing I want you to remember: Neuralgia in any one of its special forms may result from anemia. If the blood is impoverished it cannot supply the nourishment required for health and function. One authority has said of this painful symptom, "Neuralgia is the cry of a nerve for more or better blood."

But pain in not a symptom in every case of anemia. Many patients suffer from poor blood because of the absorption of toxins from some sort of body poisoning. When there is neuralgia, it is important that the blood be enriched and purified. Some cases can make no progress towards a cure until cod liver oil, iron or other addition to the diet supplies what the blood lacks. Then the neuralgia, headaches or what not disappears as if by magic.

Answers to Health Queries

O. H. S. Q.—Would eliminating all starches and sweets from the diet have a tendency to weaken the system?

A.—Yes, you can overdo a good thing. It is better to be temperate in the eating of sugar and starch than to abstain entirely from their use.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

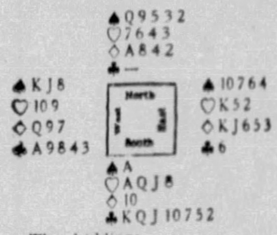
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The Double That Makes the Contract

Even though you are sure of being able to defeat an adverse contract, it is not always wise to double. A double should be made only under these conditions: When you are in a position to double any other bid the opponents may make or are sure, from the bidding, that your partner may do so.

The dangers of doubling one suit when you cannot double another are vividly portrayed in the hand shown below, which was played recently in a duplicate game at the Wissahickon Club in Philadelphia.

South—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♠ (1)	Pass
3 ♡ (2)	Pass	4 ♡ (3)	Pass
6 ♣ (4)	Double (5)	6 ♡ (6)	Pass
Pass	Double (7)	Redouble (8)	Pass
Pass	Pass

(1) Although the suit chosen for a response is shaded, North must make some effort to improve the contract.

(2) A forcing rebid, requiring both players to keep the bidding open until a game contract is reached.

(3) North makes the obvious choice.

(4) Perhaps a slight overbid, but South has a hand of tremendous distributional value and containing four honor-tricks. His partner has made a free response and shown some kind of support for the heart suit.

(5) A very unwise double. West does not even know that his minor tenace in spades will take a trick, and the double of six clubs is certain, in view of the previous bidding, to result in a slam contract in hearts, which he has little prospect of defeating.

(6) Obvious.

(7) An incomprehensible double. With the length in the club suit, even West's ace is in jeopardy.

(8) While North does not have great strength in spades, his void of clubs and the diamond Ace may prove very satisfactory substitutes for greater strength in the spade suit.

West's double, which, when the cards went down, clearly located the club Ace in his hand, made the realization of the slam contract easy. West's opening lead was the diamond 7, which was won with the Ace in dummy, and a small heart led and finessed immediately. When the finesse held, South led the club deuce, West played low, and the trick was trumped with the heart 4 in dummy. South returned to his own hand by finessing the hearts a second time, laid down the Ace of trumps, which captured East's King, conceded a trick to the club ace, and thus made his redoubled contract.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Mrs. Culbertson will be glad to answer any specific question on bidding or play sent in by readers. Address her in care of this newspaper, inclosing a three-cent stamped self-addressed envelope.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

Is it necessary to hold a minor biddable suit to make a jump overcall?

Answer: No. This bid shows a powerful hand, and should be used in preference to a takeout double when holding more than 3 honor tricks and a freak hand (seven-card suit) or a strong two-suited hand.

Heart of a Wife -:- -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Lillian Says Marion Is "Falling for" Owen

Lillian's demeanor as Dicky and Harry came into the room bore out my conviction that she had herself well in hand, and would betray nothing more of the agitation, amounting almost to hysteria, which has been back of her exclamation.

"What I've been through! If anyone had told me that my child would—"

The entrance of her husband and mine had arrested that exclamation. I knew her horror of women who "went to pieces," especially before a masculine audience, and that though she had let the barriers down before me because of our long and intimate association—each of us, without an adult woman relative, finds in the other more than a substitute for that vital relation—she would not let either Harry or Dicky see what I had seen.

"Sit down, boys!" she said as they advanced into the room, "and draw your chairs close. I want to get all this mess off my chest before you see the younger generation in action. I want you to be able to watch them knowing what I know, and form an opinion accordingly."

"By younger generation," her husband said quietly, "you mean specifically?"

"Marion, Ronald and Mary," she answered. "Carolyn and Bob don't count. They are entirely outside the problem, and if anything more serious than the price of ice cream sodas disturbs their butterfly minds, I have yet to discover it. But the other three!"

She stopped and leaned forward in her chair, resting her arms upon the chair arms and putting her hands together with fingertips pressing into each other.

"It's Mary whose attitude puzzles me," she said, and though she did not look at me I got the effect of a sidelong glance. "Much as I loathe admitting it, I can understand the reactions of Marion, while Ronald is simply jealous and unhappy. But Mary! Well; I fancy I would better begin at the beginning."

"Yes, tell us all about it," her husband said encouragingly.

"Just a sec!" Dick rose abruptly, strode to the door, opened it suddenly, looked up and down the hall, and after closing the door again, came back to his chair.

"We never have been able to cure our darling Katie of listening at keyholes," he said.

"She's safe for the next two hours," I said smiling. "She and Mrs. Ticer are so busy with dinner that they hardly have time to breathe."

"That's bully!" My husband's tone was unfeelingly grim. "Go on, Lil! Sorry for the interruption."

"You're right to be careful," she said. "This isn't anything for public consumption; but it's a pretty problem for those concerned. And I'm not going to beat about the bush any longer. Here's all the news in the first paragraph. I'm afraid Marion is falling for that piece of limburger we dignify with the name of Charles Owen."

"No! What nonsense! You're overwrought, mistaken," I exclaimed.

"I wish I were wrong," Lillian said. "I've tried to make myself believe that I was. Of course, I was prepared to find Owen doing his best to captivate the child. You and Harry"—she looked at me—"had prepared me for that; and I confess that for awhile I was pretty sore at both of you for having kept it from me. But I suppose if she's the type to fall for a man old enough to be her father, and a thorough-paced rascal into the bargain, it was inevitable, no matter where she was—"

"Stop right there!" I said indignantly. "If you mean that Marion is more susceptible to that sort of thing than any other young girl, you've let your anxiety blind you. That's the birthright of every adolescent girl—to have a temporary infatuation for an older man. Often the man himself hasn't the slightest idea that he is so set apart. Why! I'll warrant you've forgotten it."

A Columnist's Sec'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: Friends of mine who were seeing the Swedish-American's liner Gripsholm off the other day thought they saw a ringer for Garbo . . . I tried to check with the line, but you know how that is . . . Virginia Haines Sanborn was rescued from drowning by C. G. Rikert at Big Bill Edwards' camp at Emerald Lake, Conn . . . The Jolson-Keeler merger, which is almost in its fifth year, is a new record . . . George Cukor's cousin or something phoned. Very worried about your query—I said I thought you meant his romance with Ina Claire . . . Al Trahan phoned. Said that things are so bad in Chicago they are putting taxi meters on patrol wagons . . . Funnier is what happened to Bernie . . . He was walking the boardwalk at Asbury and stepped on a loose board—which hit him a terrific whack on the shoulder . . . Without turning around he chirped "All right all right. I'll pay you tomorrow!"

Mrs. Roy Sedley (she is Harriet Hilliard, and her melting papers are filed), and Ham Fisher have it bad . . . Virginia Cherrill has gone to work for MGM to take her mind off her jilting . . . Polly Ann Young is no longer Billy Bakewell's headache . . . Ought to hurl an orchid at the Cotton Club, which has installed a cooling system during the torrid spell, no other hot-spot in town cares that much about its night-loafers . . . Sally O'Neil, who still considers Peter Arno Head Man, features a heavy topcoat and no hose . . . Too bad about Judith Wood. That motor car crash damaged her beautiful nose, which you do not notice—but it doesn't "camera" . . . She's coming back to try her luck over again in local shows. But what local shows? . . . Peggy Blane's ex is now Betty Compson's.

Your friend Laemmle, Jr., is still cussing himself over letting George Brent get away from him . . . Had him under contract—and let him go to the Chatterton picture "The Rich Are Always With Us"—and some of the rooters are now hailing him as a second Gable . . . Junior also let the Bette Davis gal get away from him . . . Lubitsch has been rushing Phyllis Clare, who still has immigration miseries . . . The Andre gal's name isn't pronounced Gwili—it's Jeelee . . . Christine Maple and Betty Boyd are feuding over the latter's mate . . . Corinne Griffith and Walter Morosco were others who lost their fortune recently . . . Mickey Neilan's in town, as is Colleen Moore's groom, Al Scott. The latter only for a fortnight's business trip . . . What'll I do with that monkey sent by Olsen and Johnson? . . . Its name is Willie, as if I care . . . They sent 40 of them to local scribes.

You might as well wise up, theater managers, to the old racket, which some of the lads have revived . . . They have cards printed a la the average reporter's press pass . . . They are peddled at $1 each—and you'd besurprised how many theaters recognize the bearer. They are even crashing speakeasies and dine on the cuff . . . "Manhattan Spotlight" will be the name of a new guide to New York . . . Hoot Gibson was introduced as James Dunn the other night and was he embarrassed? . . . You could have hit him with an egg—and cooked it! . . . Phyllis Fraser, the newest RKO contract-getter is a cousin of Ginger Rogers . . . Wonder why Edna Murphy didn't show up for her divorce papers which were granted the other day? . . . That sorta holds Mervyn LeRoy's plans, what?

Walter Wanger was almost tempted to take back his old job at Paramount after Shulberg went out . . . But if he had—it would have ruined his swelegant chance of collecting all that dough he is suing for—for breach of contract—a mere quarter of a million or more . . . One of the major radio "names" is having sponsor trouble—and his agreement is now being considered for a settlement . . .

The new gag for the former stay-up-lates, who no longer go to the speaks and clubs, is hiring a small crew of rhumba players or sax tooters and bringing them up to a friend's penthouse . . . Very little tariff for the musicians, who are tickled pink meeting people nowanights . . . By the way, read "Sweet Cheat," pretty good . . . There is talk that within 2 months a 4th radio chain is due—but it will only offer electrical transcriptions . . . Arthur Tracy and his kid brother, his valet, swapped punches backstage the other performance. Must be the humidity . . . Howard Cushman—who attended the Actors' Dinner Club, which got the day's proceeds from a new orange juice branch, said: "A friend in Needick's is a friend Indeedicks" . . . Swell break for Dorothy Wilson, who is a typist at the RKO script dept. in Hollywood . . . To her amazement she was suddenly picked for the femme lead in a new picture, but she had to agree after the movie was done she would resume her typing duties until they decided if she would make another . . . Which reminded a wag of Wilson Mizner's classic advice: "Always be pleasant to the people you meet on the way going up—for they are the same people you meet on the way down!"

Pickford Film Revived For Talkies

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, July 11.

Yielding to the demand of screen audiences, Fox plans to team Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell again in the coming talkie version of "Tess of the Storm Country."

The remake of the early Mary Pickford success will go into production about August 10, with Al Santell directing. It will be the first picture under his new contract and the second Pickford story he has brought to the talkies. "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," which is now being generally released, was the first.

Back in the silent days, "Tess" was played by Mary, Lloyd Hughes, Gloria Hope and David Torrence. It was one of the films that helped to win its star the title of "America's Sweetheart."

Mary Pickford

While the new script is being prepared, both Janet Gaynor and Charlie Farrell are enjoying a vacation. An ardent yachtsman, Charlie is having his boat put in shape for a cruise into Mexican waters. Companions on the trip will be Johnny Mack Brown and Hardie Albright.

The wife of a well known vaudeville star (he specializes as master-of-ceremony) came home from a party the other evening and complained of being annoyed by one of the male guests.

Her husband went into a terrible rage. Nothing would satisfy him but to tear the insulter limb from limb.

"Well, if you mean that," said a family friend who had brought the wife home, "I can tell you where to find him."

Dismayed but unable to wiggle off the spot, the M. C. got into his car and roared down the street.

In 15 minutes he was back.

"Did you thrash him, dear?" his wife asked solicitously.

"No," snapped the M. C., "but I was very cold to him."

BOULEVARD TALK

Up until a late hour yesterday, Warner Brothers still had no reply to their cable urging Ann Dvorak to come back to Hollywood and fulfill her two picture engagements. Equally surprised by Ann's sea voyage, her mother also has cabled, asking her to leave the boat at Balboa and fly back to Hollywood . . . No one was greatly surprised yesterday when Harry D'Arrast resigned as director of Al Jolson's picture for United Artists. Harry wanted to do the picture one way, Al another. Now Chester Erskin will do the job—his first as a film director . . . Rumors of marital discord have been revived by Greta Nissen's plan to fly to New York Saturday, but the blonde star insists she goes to see her sick mother and not to leave her recent groom, Weldon Heyburn . . . Reduced to 117 pounds, Clara Bow is back in town for conferences over her coming picture at Fox. She'll return to the Rex Bell ranch after talking story with scenarist Eddie Burke, who is preparing the script from a hospital bed . . . Another star planning a vacation on the wate; is Dick Arlen. He and Jobyna Ralston will cruise to Mazatlan after Dick finishes "Riddle Me This" at Paramount . . . According to Cedric Gibbons, Dolores Del Rio will not seek film or stage engagements until the middle of August.

Clara Bow

When Jack Oakie returns from Universal, he will go into "Manhattan Rhythm" at Paramount. Adrienne Ames is another new name for this cast.

This picture will see a further test of the Stuart Walker acting school at Paramount. Four of its players, George Raft, Cary Grant, Sari Maritza and Miss Ames, report to Walker's dramatic laboratory four hours every day when they are not working in a picture. Paramount is the only studio which makes this compulsory.

'Dark Horse' Is Film In the Enright

"Dark Horse," political comedy, opened Saturday in the Enright for a three-day run. Heading the cast are Warren William, Bette Davis, Frank McHugh and Guy Kibbee. Wednesday the bill will be "Scandal for Sale," with Pat O'Brien and Rose Hobart.

Sheridan Square Film Is 'Vanity Fair'

"Vanity Fair of Today," modernized version of the Thackeray story, is the feature in the Sheridan Square until Wednesday, when the bill will change. In it Becky Sharpe is played by Myrna Loy, Conway Tearle, Barbara Kent, Walter Byron, Anthony Bushnell, Montague Love, Lionel Belmore and Billy Bevan are in the cast.

BRINGING HOME THE PAUSE THAT REFRESHES

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

Point of View

IT WAS a very hot Sunday in July. Mr. Bill Moriarity, head of a clan that included Mrs. Moriarity and four little Moriaritys, stood back and gazed with pride at the job he had just accomplished. The job was the converting of the small Moriarity delivery wagon into a passenger vehicle that would carry the Moriaritys and their friends into the country for a gay day of picnicking.

There was no doubt that the conversion had been entirely successful. Two American flags, slightly soiled but still noble, hung over the sides of the open truck; sides that held the magic words—"Moriarity's Express"—when the vehicle was used in a business capacity.

On the floor of the truck were eight campstools, all borrowed for the occasion from Blodgett, the good-natured undertaker on the corner. The lunch boxes could go right under the driver's seat—and if there was a slight smell of gasoline when the sandwiches were opened, who was going to complain?

Bill raced up the stairs and pulled Mrs. Moriarity to the front window.

"There it is, Eileen," he announced proudly. "Flags, decorations, campstools and an extra heavy chair for your fat friend, Mrs. Muller. I'm takin' no chances with her. If she fell from one of them stools, she'd go right through the floor of the truck.

"I think it's swell. How does it strike you, Mrs. Moriarity?"

The lady nodded.

"It's beautiful, Bill," she returned, "but I've been thinkin' lately that maybe you'll buy a regular car some day. If things get better, I mean. I'd love to have a regular automobile. Mr. Ryan was tellin' me only the other mornin' that cars can now be bought for—"

"To the devil with Mr. Ryan," was Mr. Moriarity's rather inelegant but completely conclusive reply. "He's out to sell his bum machines to anybody who's fool enough to listen—and I don't want you payin' no attention to his line of gab.

"You get them swell notions out of your dome, my fair lady. You'll ride in Moriarity's delivery truck on Sundays—and like it."

His wife laughed and grasped his arms.

"Don't get so serious, Bill. You're the greatest husband in the world—and I not only like Moriarity's truck but I love it. All I was sayin' was that, some day, I'd be very happy with a regular car."

"As long as you put it that way," he grinned, "I'll be honest with you. So would I." . . .

What a time the Moriaritys had that day! They talked about it for a long, long time. They went far out on Long Island and found a road that led them into a millionaire's estate. Nobody bothered them, and they had their lunch right on the edge of a private pool.

The doggonest things happened. Bill Moriarity wrestled with Nick Kelly, who was always boasting of his strength, and Nick threw him twice in 10 minutes. Harry Jordan ripped his trousers on a nail and, being of a very sensitive nature, had to keep seated most of the day. And the fat Mrs. Muller, while reaching for a butterfly, lost her balance and fell right in to the pond.

The laughs they all had! It was dark before they started back . . .

* * *

On the same hot Sunday in July, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Moriarity stepped from their Park avenue home into their imported Rolls-Royce. It was a beautiful machine in the latest mode; a dark blue with a silver hood.

It goes without saying that Mr. Bill Moriarity and Mr. Reginald Moriarity had nothing in common except the name. Perhaps, in bygone years, their ancestors had played leap frog together—but years before. This Mr. Moriarity was one of the wealthiest men in the nation and one of the great powers in the city of New York. It was a far cry from Moriarity's Rolls-Royce to Moriarity's express wagon.

Mr. Reginald Moriarity was going to his country club for the day. As his car sped along, he talked to his wife.

"Martha," he said softly, "what has become of the happiness we found together when we first started? What's happened to you that has made you change so completely toward me? What is it, dear?"

Her eyes flashed venom.

"Don't you 'dear' me," she returned. "You know perfectly well that I detest you, and that I have detested you for a long time. Why don't you leave me alone when I want to be alone?

"If you'd be more sensible and adapt yourself to conditions, I might feel more kindly disposed toward you. As it is now, you bore me."

Mr. Moriarity sighed.

"I don't understand," he murmured. "I try so hard—but I can't understand. Perhaps if there had been a child or two—"

"Oh," snapped his wife, "stop talking like a fool." . . .

It was a beautiful day at the country club, but Mr. Moriarity could find very little to enjoy. He had seen it so often before. Luncheon was a dull affair—with those present doing far more posing than eating. When the men gathered on the terrace, you heard nothing but talk about the depression. It was all just a little sad.

In the late afternoon Mr. Moriarity went looking for his wife. He found her sitting with the man who was commonly reported to be in love with her. He asked her to come with him. She laughed.

'No, my love," she replied sarcastically, "not right now. If you don't mind I'd prefer to sit here and be amused. Take the car and go. I'll see you at home later."

Mr. Moriarity went out among the trees and wandered vaguely for an hour. It was dark when he started back . . . .

* * *

About an hour before they reached New York, Mr. Reginald Moriarity's Rolls Royce and Mr. Bill Moriarity's express wagon were stopped by a traffic light. The two cars stood abreast. Bill Moriarity poked his wife in the ribs just as she was in the middle of "The Wearin' of the Green."

"There's the car you was talkin' about this mornin', Eileen," he grinned. "Wonder if that guy in there would swap cars?"

Everybody laughed at that, even the fat Mrs. Muller. They laughed so loudly that Mr. Reginald Moriarity leaned forward. He looked directly into the truck. He saw Bill's arm around Eileen. He saw faces that glowed. And he sat wide-eyed as the youngest Moriarity kid, his face covered with jam, held out a piece of bread and butter in a friendly gesture.

Instinctively, the millionaire's hand reached out as if to take it from the child. The lights changed suddenly. The Rolls-Royce shot ahead.

Mr. Moriarity leaned back. He closed his eyes. He shivered.

"God," he breathed, "If I could only change places . . ."

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

A chapter photoplay, by, of and for the people of Pittsburgh, had a first showing in four Pittsburgh parks last night. This is "Know Your City," a 10-reel film—talkie it is—made for the Bureau of Parks by the Atlantic Film Corporation of Pittsburgh. The first reel only was shown Sunday night and the other nine will be shown at weekly intervals in Schenley, Highland, East and McKinley parks. It will present all sorts of scenes filmed in our own fair city, with descriptive talk by Glenn Riggs, well-known radio announcer.

* * *

Libby Holman, whose sad situation makes her a national figure just now, owes her reputation as a "blues" singer to a peculiar throat condition. This has been said to be natural and also to be the result of a slip of a surgeon's knife in a throat operation. Take your choice. Anyway, the tones are a peculiar masculine-feminine mixture that has brought her fame in lachrymose ditties like "Moanin' Low" and "Body and Soul." She appeared here in the Nixon last November in "Three's a Crowd." Twice in her life she achieved that elusive success that is called "over-night fame." Her first hit was entirely individual, for the show in which she made it was a "flop," and she soon was forgotten. But later she had a chance to repeat, and she has been a star ever since.

"The Greenwich Village Follies" is to be revived as a title. And when it takes to the road for a tour with Ted Healy as star it will be a revised edition of "Hey Nonny Nonny," musical revue that recently closed in New York.

* * *

Barbara Stanwych, who used to sing on the stage, does it for the first time on the screen in "The Purchase Price." The title of her song is "Take Me Away," and it was composed especially for her use in this picture.

* * *

Katharine Cornell, on her return from Europe, will follow a production schedule that includes, in the order named, "Alien Corn," by Sidney Howard; Thornton Wilder's translation from the French, "The Rape of Lucrece," by Andre Obey, and a play by Clemence Dane, whose subject is the three Bronte sisters.

Almost

Sun Tan Craze Fades In Hollywood

Only three of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's young feminine players have followed last year's sun tan craze. Joan Crawford, Leila Hyams and Joan Marsh are displaying golden brown skins. The others, Marion Davies, Norma Shearer, Jean Harlow, Dorothy Jordan, Maureen O'Sullivan, Ruth Selwyn, Virginia Bruce, Una Merkel, Myrna Loy and Karen Morley are keeping their own white skins.

YOUTH DROWNS IN LOCK POOL

Versailles volunteer firemen were dragging the Monongahela River near Jefferson today as a plane flew near the surface in an effort to sight the body of Norman Copeland, 18, of 723 Bayne street, Versailles, who was drowned when he dived into the stream below Lock No. 3 late yesterday.

Mr. Copeland

Police said Copeland, swimming with Walter Harr, 33, of 418 Twenty-fifth street, McKeesport, his uncle, and William Harr, 19, of West Elizabeth, his cousin, was overcome by the strong current when the three men dived from a pier of the dam.

Walter Harr told police he twice went to the youths aid. The second time he said Copeland told him he was all right, but when he and William reached the pier Copeland had disappeared.

Copeland's fiance, Katherine Miller, 18, of 847 Bennett street, McKeesport, hurrying to the scene, fainted when told he had drowned.

Four youths assisting in the search for the body were rescued after they were swept down the river nearly a quarter mile when thir boat was caught in a whirlpool and capsized. They were Ross Warren, 19, of Jones, Pa., John Chudis, 21, and Fred Burd, 19, both of West Elizabeth, and James Armstrong, 19, of Jefferson.

PRINCETON, N. J., July 11.—(INS.)—The Greeks had a word for it.

It was Psmythion.

The Romans called it cerussa, but today Prof. T. Leslie Shear, of Princeton University, explained it was the white face powder which ancient women used to beautify themselves as long ago as 400 B. C.

He said he found some of this powder, the first white face powder to be discovered by archeologists, in a burial ground in Corinth, Greece.

An analysis of it here showed, Shear declared, that it was manufactured by methods similar to those used today in making cosmetics.

3 THUGS STEAL CAB; TRIO HELD

Three men, said by police to have engaged a taxicab in East Liberty early today and ridden to Regent Square, Swissvale, where they beat the driver, E. P. Capaccioli, 20, of 223 South Matilda street, and drove away in his cab, were held by Braddock police after they are alleged to have attacked Patrolman William Craig at Center and Corey avenues, Braddock, when he recognized them from a police description.

Capaccioli was taken by a passing motorist to the Edgewood Police Station, where he told Police Chief Jack Dyer he was beaten when he protested after the men refused to pay their fares. He was treated for lacerations of the head and face and body bruises.

Craig said one of the men, who gave his name as Hugh Dowling, of Liberty avenue, ripped palings from a nearby fence and attacked him when he accosted the trio at Corey and Center avenues. Craig knocked his assailant to the pavement with a blackjack, drew his revolver and held at bay, until aid arrived, the other two suspects, who were docketed as Gerald McNamara, alias Gerald Murphy, 29; Jack Arens, 31, of 1711 Liberty avenue.

The men were identified by Capaccioli at the police station as former cab drivers. Police are searching for the missing cab.

Today we have some more bridal news. Melville A. Eberhardt, of Aylesboro avenue, announces the marriage of his sister, S. Hilda Eberhardt, daughter of the late Mrs. W. C. Eberhardt, to Louis Cole, of Riverside, Cal., which is taking place at high noon today in the Eberhardt home, with the Rev. Dr. Carl August Voss, pastor of the German Lutheran Church, officiating. The home is decorated with ferns, crotons and spring flowers, and lighted by tall tapers.

The bride is wearing a white satin gown made on lines of Grecian simplicity, having long, close-fitting sleeves, and the skirt extending in a full court train. Her veil of tulle cascades from a cap of rose point and she is carrying a sheaf of calla lillies.

Her niece, Virginia Murphy, is her maid of honor and the only attendant, and she's wearing flowered chiffon with a pink straw hat and carrying roses and blue delphinium. After the breakfast and reception for the families, Mr. Cole and his bride are leaving for San Francisco where they will make their home.

Dorothy Acheson Married to R. E. Smith

Announcement is made of the marriage on Friday, of Miss Dorothy Lael Acheson, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Acheson and the late Rev. Dr. Thomas Acheson, of Beaver Falls, to Attorney Ralph E. Smith, of Ambridge, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Smith, of Beaver Falls. The ceremony took place in the home of the officiating clergyman, the Rev. James M. Ferguson, pastor of the First United Presbyterian Church of Bellevue.

Miss Virginia Baker was the maid of honor, and Attorney Wayne Theophilus served as best man. Miss Mary Rowley, of Chester, W. Va., played the wedding music.

After the dinner and reception at The Pines, Mr. and Mrs. Smith left for a motor trip through the Muskoga Lake region, Canada. They will reside in Baden, Pa.

Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of Geneva College, and he was graduated from the University of Pittsburgh Law School. Mrs. Smith has taught in the Bellevue High School.

300 Attend First Summer Outing Of Westmoreland Federation At Treasure Health Camp

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Nearly 300 women, some of them from Allegheny County, attended the Westmoreland County Federation's first summer outing on Saturday. It was held at Treasure Health Camp, on Laurel Mountain, the summer preventorium maintained for undernourished children by the Westmoreland Public Health Association, with the assistance of the Federation. Fifty girls are at the camp now, but, unless funds are forthcoming, the camp cannot be kept open long enough to take care of any boys this year.

Mrs. J. H. Freeman, of Derry, the federation's welfare chairman, introduced the federation president, Mrs. Samuel N. Warden, and the association president, Frank B. Miller. The principal speaker, Dr. Samuel O. Pruitt, of Philadelphia, medical director of the Pennsylvania Tuberculosis Society, discussed the prevention, control and cure of tuberculosis and stressed the importance of finding "the spreaders," those, who often unknown even to themselves, are carrying the germs. As against 254 deaths out of every 100,000 persons in 1890; only 97 deaths resulted in 1922, Dr. Pruitt showed. "Early discovery is early recovery," he stated.

Other speakers included Mrs. James G. Chalfant, district president of the State Federation, who termed the Westmoreland federation's work as the outstanding welfare activity in this district; Mrs. Margaret Kulp, executive secretary of the State Federation, who mentioned departmental activities as seen from headquarters in Harrisburg; Mrs. David Denman, of the State Legislature, and Mrs. John M. Phillips, who talked of the value of federation and the necessity, under present economic conditions, of remaining in one's club. Every woman needs her club, she said, if for no better reason than to show her that all other women are having much the same troubles.

Leaders Speak

Dr. Sonia Cheifet, in charge of the health car which the State Department of Health sends into the rural districts, told a little of its work, stating that 12,248 preschool children had been examined this year and among these five unsuspected blind eyes have been discovered.

Then, almost as an afterthought, came a talk on birds—a charming and delightful few minutes by Mrs. William P. Seitter, of Dawson, who makes the study of birds her avocation. There was music, too—by the combined chorals of Latrobe Civic and Derry Community clubs and by Miss Ruth McCormick, of Colby College for Girls, who was a joy to the eye as well as the ear.

-:- CLUB NOTES -:-

The anniversary number of the Zoar Home official publication has been sent to those on the home's mailing list. In the pamphlet is reviewed in detail "a day at the home." Day by the way, begins at 6:30, when the entire household gathers for chapel. Duties are assigned each guest at the home, the duties being regulated according to the ability of each one, and they vary from week to week.

Home Day Reviewed

It is hard to realize that Zoar receives mothers as young as 14, 15 and 16 years of age, few of whom have completed elementary school. To assist these girls in overcoming their educational handicap, a school has been established under the sponsorship of the Glenshaw group and, further, the state supplies a domestic science teacher who visits the home once every week to instruct the young mothers in sewing, cooking and other household arts. Needlecraft is taught by members of the staff.

During the fiscal year just ended, 182 children have been cared for at the home, and 122 mothers have, according to the pamphlet, "found Zoar Home a door of hope." Although Zoar Home is in the Welfare Fund and is a member of the Federation of Social Agencies, it is still dependent to a large degree upon the personal interest and help of its friends.

Plane Propeller Kills Girl Thanking Pilot

M'DONOUGH, Ga., July 11.—(AP.)—A word of thanks cost Miss Ruth Ellis James, 18, her life yesterday.

She made several flights in an airplane at the dedication of an airport and was struck dead by the propeller as she turned to thank the pilot.

FASHION ADOPTS THE GUIMPE IDEA

Sketched in Paris

PARIS, July 11.—The French dressmaking world has gone on an economy program. Thrift continues to be not only a virtue, but a smart fashion as well. Rue de la Paix is occupied with making francs and dollars go as far as possible on the road of style. Even the most commercial fashion establishment tells its clients nowadays that one good dress is better than three indifferent ones.

MANY a dressmaker carries the matter still further and shows its clients how one good dress can serve in place of three. Change of accessories, coats that turn inside out, additional aprons and guimpes are only a few of the devices used by designers to disguise a single dress into the appearance of several.

THE GUIMPE idea is among the newest. It began with the simple schoolgirl dress on the jumper plan, with several blouses in cotton and silk to go with one suspender frock. Now it has become an almost universal fashion and appears even in evening clothes.

MAINBOCHER makes black crepe evening frocks with little guimpes of still white organdie or of linen. Linen and organdie flowers go with the guimpes and transform the frock with their white or bright color.

CHANTAL makes her guimpes removable, so that they serve in place of little jackets or wraps.

CHANTAL'S red evening dress is sketched here with its guimpe. The dress itself is bright vermilion, the guimpe in dark bordeaux red, in heavy silk crepe, and is marked with stitched plaits. The guimpe ties like a scarf at the back, and when removed may be flung about one's shoulders like a scarf.

PENNA. SUBURBS DRAW MANY

HARRISBURG, July 11.—(AP.)—A marked movement of people to suburban areas near the large cities of Pennsylvania, Dr. Charles Reitell, director of the Greater Pennsylvania Council, said today, is a predominant note of the state's recent population growth.

He noted Pennsylvania leads all states in the number of metropolitan districts which contain more than 100,000 people. The 10 Pennsylvania districts so classified, he said, have a total population of 6,622,274, or nearly 70 per cent of the state's entire population.

Dr. Reitell says of the suburban areas in the council's forthcoming bulletin on Pennsylvania population trends:

"Few of these communities are adequately served by nearby state or other public recreational facilities, according to ideal standards, or even according to those achieved in certain other states."

Using Pittsburgh as "an excellent example of the recent type of population growth," he said it had 669,817 people in 1930, while the city's metropolitan district had 1,953,000.

Search Arsenal Ruins For Buried Chinese

NANKING, July 11.—(INS.)—Rescuers today searched the ruins of a Chinese arsenal outside Nanking for the bodies of several score persons believed killed in an explosion which demolished the plant.

The explosion occurred yesterday. It was followed by fires which continued to burn today, hampering the work of rescuers.

3 Get 977 Days For Illegal Fishing

RIDGWAY, Pa., July 11.—(AP.)—Unable to pay fines of $977 for dynamiting fish, C. J. Gerber, George Johnson and S. J. Lisberger, all of St. Mary's, have been ordered to jail for 977 days.

Pennsy Blockaded By Freight Wreck

ALTOONA, Pa., July 11.—(AP.)—Wreck of 11 loaded freight cars on an eastbound Pennsylvania Railroad train was investigated today. All four main lines of track near Huntington were blocked for several hours by the derailment Saturday night. Four Negroes "bumming" rides on the cars were slightly injured.

FOE OF DAVILA PUT TO FLIGHT

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 11.—(INS.)—Carlos Davila today was locked behind the doors of the presidential palace, having established himself as provisional president of Chile and provided a guard of tank and machine gun corps about him to maintain his power.

He stood a victor, temporarily at least, over former President Carlos Ibanez, who returned from exile last week in a vain attempt to regain power by unseating Davila.

Ibanez, after lining up approximately half of the army and civilian population behind him, failed last night and was advised to flee the city for his life. He sought refuge with friends in the south.

BRAZIL BATTLES ARMY REVOLT

RIO DE JANEIRO, July 11.—(AP.)—Two army regiments at Sao Paulo, capital of the wealthy Brazilian southern state of the same name, were in revolt against the federal government of President Vargas today, it was officially announced.

The official communique added, however, that every other state was quiet and the government was taking "severe action" against the rebels, hoping the movement would be "isolated promptly and dominated soon."

President Vargas issued a proclamation declaring the army was loyal, except for the revolting regiments. Forces were sent from other states to put down the uprising, it was stated.

The revolt began Saturday. Sao Paulo, center of the coffee-growing industry, recently has insisted upon its autonomy.

PINCHOT, LEADERS SEEK COMPROMISE ON RELIEF

POLITICS

Little Candidate; Faulkner Stays,

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, July 11.—Councilman Harry Little intends to be a candidate for re-election.

Police Inspector Charles Faulkner, of the North Side, is not to be removed unless there is a change in the present and already once-revised plans of the Kline administration.

Mr. Shields

These two stories are interwoven in the political web now being spun in the City of Allegheny, that section of Pittsburgh beyond the Allegheny which has always maintained its identity as a separate municipal unit, jealous of its autonomy and insistent upon its rights to send an "ambassador" of its own choosing to the City Council.

Faulkner, in the bad graces of many Kline associates, including some North Side ward chairmen, had been slated for the ax, the report being the Mayor was only awaiting determination of his plea for setting aside of the verdict returned against His Honor in Butler. This intention was highly displeasing to such political factors in Allegheny as Dr. F. H. Frederick and Samuel J. Grenet, the latter chairman of the Twenty-seventh Ward and the former at one time known as the "chairman of ward chairmen," in the days before Kline became the chairman of all ward chairmen.

Now, according to reports from separated political units on the North Side, each report dovetailing into the other, Little is to get the aid of Grenet and Frederick in return for the retention of Faulkner. Such a deal should make the North Side a unit for the councilman.

Something yet may transpire to overturn this agreement, but it stands today, the anti-Faulkner crowd having received representations of comparative satisfaction.

A member of the police department who had been chosen to succeed Faulkner is reconciled to staying where he is, a more peaceful berth.

Kline Making Motions Like Real Candidate

Mayor Kline is making motions like a real candidate for re-election. He has the ego of all politicians which convinces him that for him the star of success never sets, and he will continue to think so for some months if he gets by his next court hurdle. That is an optimism shared by some organization leaders who cannot see beyond the confines of absolutely controlled districts, which are growing smaller.

It is not, however, a feeling shared by other regular leaders of the Republican party who are alive to the march of time. Where Senator James J. Coyne stands in this division of opinion is a matter undetermined, but it is a safe bet that the Oakland-McCandless township statesman is quite satisfied to have matters rest as they are for the present.

So long as the Mayor is making motions like a candidate the Senator is not compelled to make a choice between those two other major and pushing aspirants, President of Council John Herron and City Controller J. P. Kerr. He is friendly toward both. To have to, at this time, get behind one and sidetrack the other might be embarrassing, as well as lacerating to the patriot cast aside. Continuing on the subject of the Senator, he is generally recognized as one of the shrewdest, if not THE shrewdest, of our local politicians. He has a record in support of that estimate.

Yet last week in Harrisburg the Senator for, a moment slipped his mantle of canniness when he came out in the open against the Mansfield bill to abolish the fee office of delinquent tax collector.

The Senator fought manfully to send the bill back to committee for burial purposes, Senator Mansfield charged. It revealed clearly that Coyne was not so keen for economy as to be willing to forego on behalf of the organization the juicy income of this office.

* * *

Delinquent Tax Fees Would Buy Much Food

That won't be good campaign material, and is hardly consistent with the platform of the Senator when he ran for County Commissioner—reduction in expenses to the overburdened taxpayer. Even if tax penalties were kept at their present figures, turning the $100,000 annual earnings of the delinquent tax collector into the county treasury rather than into the pockets of an individual or a group of preferred politicians, would buy a lot of baskets of food for those in need.

Opportune to the hearing today of charges that Chairman W. D. B. Ainey, of the Public Service Commission, was heavily rewarded by the late Thomas E. Mitten, of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, is another story touching the Public Service Commission.

It is gossiped that Gov. Pinchot, in return for support given him in the last regular legislative session by Senator John Homsher, of Lancaster, agreed to retain Dr. T. B. Appel as Secretary of Health, and to re-appoint J. W. Brown as Public Service Commissioner when his term expired, July 1. Appel was retained. Brown's term expired, and he has not been reappointed.

Now, it is reported, the Governor has agreed to re-appoint Brown if the organization control in the Senate will agree to confirm two Pinchot-guaranteed commissioners, Judge George Woodruff and Frederick P. Gruenberg, of Philadelphia. The organization officially has refused to dicker.

STORM CAUSES HEAVY DAMAGE IN DISTRICT

Trees Uprooted, Wires Torn Down, Many Streets Flooded

High wind and sharp lightning marked the third violent storm that visited the Pittsburgh district in four days last night, and today workmen were repairing the havoc wrought to telephone and light service. Residents in various parts of the district reported their homes damaged and trees shattered by lightning.

Two persons were injured slightly when an electric light wire, blown down in the storm, shattered a window on a Squirrel Hill street car in Murray avenue. Henry Toole, operator, was cut on the hand, and Max Klein, a passenger, of 3329 Ward street, declared a piece of glass struck his eye. Both were treated at the Craft avenuue emergency station.

Michael Bielich, 75, and his granddaughters, Florence and Eleanor Cothery, of 621 Corey avenue, Braddock, were rescued from a dresser when their home was flooded.

ESCAPE LIGHTNING

M. D. Cavilar, of 701 Loretta street, and his family, seated on their porch during the storm, escaped injury when lightning struck a chimney. Falling bricks damaged the dwelling's roof.

At the C. A. Rehtmeyer, Inc., automobile agency, Craig street and Baum boulevard, the wind broke three windows and also wrecked a huge sign outside the building.

Floods were reported at Thirty-third street and Liberty avenue, Liberty avenue and the Bloomfield Bridge, 2300 Center avenue and several East End corners when sewers were clogged with debris.

A tree was uprooted in the yard of Edward White, 3358 Webster avenue, hurling it against a fence and smashing it, together with the fence in the rear of the home of Mrs. Mary Haney, 3347 Milwaukee street. The falling tree also leveled a telephone pole.

BOLT HITS WIRES

Lightning struck the high tension wires in Devillers street, causing a flare of fire that ran along the wires from Center avenue to Webster avenue. Lightning also felled trees in Hazelwood, Squirrel Hill and Oakland.

In the Brighton road district police said that the wind reached the velocity of a tornado, snapping off trees and hurling refuse cans about. At the Little Sisters of the Poor home trees were also broken by the wind.

Heavy damage was reported throughout the North boroughs.

A tree crashed into the roof of the home of J. R. Webber, at 201 Forest avenue, Ben Avon.

Traffic was temporarily halted in several Bellevue streets, trees were uprooted, wires torn down and gardens washed out throughout the borough.

Gas Company officials were called to extinguish a blaze in West Braddock avenue, Rankin, after a gas main was struck by lightning. A portion of a brick street was reported washed out at Electric and Fourth avenues, North Braddock.

Eleventh District Independents Elect

Officers were elected by the Independent Voters' League of the Eleventh Legislative District in the Plaza Theater, Duquesne, yesterday. About 200 attended the meeting. Thos elected were:

President, D. C. Muir, Duquesne; vice presidents, Miss Bessie Mowry, Jefferson Township; secretary, J. P. Lawry, Homestead, and treasurer, W. E. Combs, Homestead.

HUGE DEFICITS OF HOSPITALS MOUNTING

Demand Renewed for Restoration of State Aid

Pennsylvania hospitals, under pressure of the most extreme nature, are piling up the largest deficits in their histories, Miss Jessie J. Turnbull, president-elect of the Hospital Association of Pennsylvania, declared today. These, she said, "threaten to be insurmountable because of the alarming shrinkage of all supporting revenues." She based her prediction on partial figures gathered by the association.

As the Legislature prepared to convene for its third week in the special session devoted to relief measures, hospital leaders renewed their insistence that the restoration of the state aid cut of 24.16 per cent must be made in full, declaring any shortage, in view of deficits from other directions, will still leave the hospitals crippled.

DEFICITS MOUNT

Heads of the two largest groups of hospitals in Pennsylvania, in Western Pennsylvania and in the Philadelphia metropolitan area, made this clear when they submitted figures showing the deficits accruing from free work for 63 of the 161 state-aided hospitals in the commonwealth.

It cost the 63 institutions, for free care, up to the year ended June 1, they reported, $5,000,643. Their full state appropriation, if no cut is enforced, amounts to $1,837,046 for that year, leaving these hospitals to overcome a deficit of $1,906,065, although they themselves have been compelled to provide a balance of $3,245,974 already.

FREE WORK COSTLY

Miss Turnbull reported that the 30 state-aided hospitals in the Pittsburgh conference, covering a dozen communities in Western Pennsylvania, as well as the metropolitan district, had incurred a cost of $2,033,730 for free hospitalization and, with every operating economy possible, had finished the year with a deficit of $458,000, although they themselves had provided $1,260,000 to offset operating expenditures.

What the aggregate deficit from free work has been for all 161 state-aided hospitals is not known, she said. Even if a total for the remaining 98 hospitals were available, it still would fail to take into account the huge amount of free care accorded by community hospitals which are not receiving state aid.

CROWDS VISIT COACH SHOW

The models, all from Pennsylvania, are entered in the $75,000 coach-building competition of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild. The Pennsylvania display is one of 72 similar exhibits being held in this country and Canada preliminary to the year's grand finale at Detroit next month.

Hoover Favors Bankers to Get Money; They Will

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Mr. Garner wants to lend money to small businessmen. Hoover thinks the money should go to the bankers.

What difference does it make who gets it first?

Mr. Hoover refuses to back down even though that is the only safe way of getting off a stepladder.

The President has had such good practice with that official veto that he can now smack a paper at 50 yards.

But the Speaker intends to keep sending that bill back to the White House until Mr. Hoover pleads for an armistice.

If Mr. Garner can keep the fight up until November 8 he will be able to smash that veto with the Vice President's gavel.

WOMAN KILLED BY AUTO

Mrs. Nettie Weyland, 55, of 5127 Center avenue, was killed early today while crossing Center avenue near Cypress street, when struck by an automobile driven, police said, by David J. Foran, of the Royal Yorke Apartments. Foran, who will appear before the Coroner, was examined at Mercy Hospital and was said to have been drinking, police reported.

Edward Damaski, 24, of 6941 Bennett street, and Ernest Nardini, of 1116 North Wheeler street, were recovering in their homes today after having been injured yesterday when trapped in their automobile when it burst into flames after colliding with a machine driven by John Gribbon, 45, of 7223½ Frankstown avenue.

Martha Pankey, 40, Negro, of 1617 Colwell street, was in Mercy Hospital with a broken right leg, suffered, according to police, when she was struck by an automobile driven by Joseph Stern, of 1400 Colwell street, near her home.

Investigate Injuries Of Duquesne Man

Duquesne police today began an investigation to determine how Calint Szelas, 50, of 134 Superior avenue, Duquesne, who was found unconscious in Peach alley early Sunday with severe lacerations of the head and a possible concussion of the brain, was injured. He was removed to McKeesport Hospital, where his condition was said to be serious.

Burns From Matches Cause Child's Death

Burned about the body when his clothing caught fire while playing with matches, July 5, Mario Rini, 3½, of 933 Mellon street, died early today in West Penn Hospital, according to a morgue report.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

MULESHOE, Tex., July 11.

Well, sir, don't you think things are looking better? They are among the stock raisers and farmers. I have always maintained that the Republicans this summer before election would, with all their influence and money power, create an amateur prosperity enough to make folks think things were on the upgrade and not to change horses. You know, it's not going to take much to make us think we are doing fine. No breast, or white meat, just the wing and the old back will taste like a banquet to us now. I think, too, just promising the people some beer made everybody feel better, even if they know they will die of old age before they get it.

Will Rogers

Yours,
WILL.

12 Orchestras Will Play at Marathon

Twelve orchestras will provide music for the "Oh, So Tired" dancers in the Motor Square Garden marathon tonight. Thirteen couples and one man doing a solo remain in the competition, which reopened to the public today after having passed the eight hundred and sixteenth hour last midnight. Tonight is the final review of orchestras participating in a competition for a prize of a week's engagement at the Garden. The winner is to be decided by popular acclaim.

SQUIRE LORCH SUES WOMAN

Albert T. Lorch, fighting Justice of the Peace of Allison Park and former county division road superintendent, today, through Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay, filed notice of a suit against Mrs. Georgetta H. Wehner, of Hampton Township.

Mrs. Wehner was said to have given information to investigators in the county audit probe in which Lorch was named as having had work done at his home with county materials and labor. He resigned two weeks ago.

The formal notice charges Mrs. Wehner with slander. No details are set forth. One of the accusations to be specified later is said to be that she made statements referring to Lorch as a "gambler and bootlegger."

Lorch, long active in Republican politics in the northern end of the county, captured single-handed a highway robber gang several years ago.

Child Opens Parley On Eastern Accord

NEWPORT, R. I., July 11.—(INS.)—The Newport conference, launched by former Ambassador Richard Washburn Child, was under way today at Child's home.

The discussions in which American financial and business leaders and visitors from the Far East participated, were designed to bring about more harmonious relations among China, Japan and the United States. Child was named chairman of the new organization.

6 to 15 Pct. Slashes In Salaries Indicated

By MARK SHIELDS.

HARRISBURG, July 1.—The same group of political leaders which drew up the harmony program leading to the calling of the special session of the Legislature will meet late this afternoon in the office of Gov. Pinchot in an effort to accelerate action on relief legislation.

In addition to the Governor and Republican State Chairman Edward Martin, those to be present are Senator James J. Coyne, Representative Joseph G. Steedle, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee; Senators Harry B. Scott, Frank Baldwin and John J. McClure, Speaker C. Jay Goodnough, representatives of the Talbot-Turner and Wade-Sheffer blocs, and James M. Hazelett, Republican city chairman of Philadelphia.

Efforts will be made to harmonize the views of the various blocs behind the original program, which includes a tax on public utilities as a means of raising relief funds. It is admitted on all sides that this is the crucial week of the Legislature, and that unless unified action can be secured, a relief program is in danger.

ECONOMY BILLS DUE

It was hoped that as a result of this afternoon's conference, the House Appropriations Committee will receive from a subcommittee a number of economy bills cutting millions from the cost of state government.

Among the measures will be a recommendation for salary cuts to all state employes receiving more than a basic sum. All receiving more than $1,200 are to be cut, it is said. The amount of the reductions to be scaled upward as salaries increase.

Cabinet officers, who cannot be affected by legislation during their terms, will be asked to take the 15 per cent cut.

Only a few bills dealing with the 14-point harmony program of Gov. Pinchot and Republican State Chairman Edward Martin are ready for action. Among them is a proposed constitutional amendment to permit Pennsylvania to take advantage of any money gifts from the federal government, another constitutional amendment for a $25,000,000 bond issue for expenses of the state government in the 1933-35 biennium, and a bill authorizing counties, cities and other municipal subdivisions to issue emergency loans up to three years against delinquent taxes.

TEACHERS AFFECTED

The Mansfield bill, reducing the salaries of school teachers, is to be amended to pertain only to the next school year.

The first bill to pass both houses finally, slated to go through the Senate tonight, appropriately is for payment of the legislators' own salaries. They have already received $250 of the $500 to which they are entitled, being the only beneficiaries to date of the relief session.

If a majority can be whipped behind the Pinchot-Martin program, and if the various blocs can harmonize their differences, adjournment can be had within three weeks with some relief afforded. It continues to be apparent that out of state funds, without the imposition of new taxes, not more than $13,000,000 will be raised for relief.

It is assured that there will be no reduction of $27,000,000 as proposed by the Talbot-Turner bloc. The majority of the Legislature and the Governor are against any such drastic cuts.

HEARST ASKED TO ADDRESS GOVERNORS

Universal Service.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 11.—(U.S.)—William Randolph Hearst, Rudolph Von Kleinsmid, president of the University of Southern California, and Robert Gordon Sproul, president of the University of California, have been invited to address the Conference of Western Governors which opens in Los Angeles on July 29.

In announcing his selection of speakers Gov. Rolph declared:

"I am asking Mr. Hearst to address us on the general subject of 'Courage to the people of the Western States.' I am requesting him to discuss all phases of the human problems he knows so well—such phases as unemployment, taxation and protection of homes."

The governor flew to Salt Lake City to complete arrangements for the conference. Six of the 11 Western governors have assured Rolph of their presence, he declared, and others will probably participate.

Included in the program are: Dedication of the State Building at Los Angeles, participation in the opening of the Olympic games and a round table discussion of unemployment, land problems, protection of bank depositors and a revision of mortgage laws to remove deficiency judgments.

7 DIE IN REICH POLITICAL WAR

BERLIN, July 11.—(INS.)—The Reichstag elections campaign was under way today, launched with extreme violence which took a toll of seven dead and 52 seriously injured, with scores slightly hurt, in political clashes in Bremen, Hamburg, Dessau and Eckenfoerde.

Adolf Hitzer's Nazis, opening their campaign with a bitter attack upon the newly-signed Lausanne Reparations Treaty, and Communists were the chief participants in the battles.

At Ohlau, in Silesia, the Reichswehr (government troops) fired on battling Nazis and Communists.

A policeman was killed in Bremen when he was searching a Communist, who carried a bomb which exploded. The Communist was injured seriously.

Hitler himself led the attack upon the Lausanne pact, declaring it would not be worth three marks six months hence."

The pictures were exhibited by a committee headed by James Sipe and were presented in East Park, McKinley Park, Schenley Park and Highland Park. The exhibition heretofore has been sponsored by the City of Pittsburgh. This year they are being financed by advertising reels.

Beach First-Aid Hospitals rely on soothing Noxzema

Suffering from a red-hot sunburn that feels as though it's searing the skin off your body? Then do this quick: Get a jar of Noxzema Cream. Spread on in a healing, cooling layer. In 5 seconds, the pain will stop, the fire cool down, and you'll know real skin comfort again.

Another wonderful feature is that Noxzema is absolutely greaseless! So you can apply it before dressing, during the day or at night before retiring—without staining your clothes or bed clothes.

Get a jar of Noxzema at any drug or department store. Next time you go to the beach take the jar along. Apply Noxzema before exposure and get a rich, even tan without the slightest burn.

In this High-pressure Age smokers want a Milder Cigarette

WE LIVE in a fast-moving age. We work harder . . . play harder . . . travel quicker. And we smoke more cigarettes.

But there's this about it: They have got to be milder today. In this high-pressure age, smokers don't like strong cigarettes.

About four miles of warehouses are filled with mild, ripe, Domestic tobaccos, stored away to age for two years to make them mild and mellow for CHESTERFIELD Cigarettes.

To make sure that CHESTERFIELD is a milder cigarette, the greater part of 90 million dollars is invested in the tobaccos used in CHESTERFIELD. These tobaccos are "Cross-Blended."

This "Welding" Together—or "Cross-Blending"—permits every kind of tobacco used in the CHESTERFIELD blend to partake of the best qualities of every other type. It's the same principle that Burbank used in crossing different fruits to make a still better fruit.

CHESTERFIELDS are milder . . . never harsh . . . and that's why, in this high-pressure age, more smokers, men and women, are changing to CHESTERFIELDS every day.

CITY STUDIES COLLECTION CHANGE

Placing collection of all cash owing the city under the City Treasurer, instead of scattering it in the hands of a number of employes, has been recommended as sound business by groups interested in increasing city revenues.

This measure, recommended by auditors of Price, Waterhouse & Co. at the time of the examination of the city treasury, has not yet been put in effect, but it is understood city officials are considering it.

The Bureau of City Property, for instance, last year collected more than $147,000 on wharf, market house and other real estate rentals.

WORK DIVIDED

The Department of Public Safety, in addition to large amounts in police court fines and forfeits, collects for permits in the building industry, including building, electric, sign and warm air heating permits.

Most of the permit fees are collected on the second floor of the City-County Building and sent by pneumatic tube to the Treasurer's office.

Until last year the wharf parking revenues had been collected by the Public Safety Department. After a thorough check by the Pittsburgh Building Owners' and Managers' Association on the number of cars being parked, and a report to City Council, the collections were taken over by the City Treasurer, and revenues almost immediately tripled and have been increasing steadily since.

The wharf parking tickets are now being issued and checked by the city controller's office.

NO CHECK MADE

Other collections are scattered through various departments in the city hall. At present there are few, if any, methods of checking on the amounts collected.

Various amusement taxes including dance permits are collected in the office of the Mayor. Street improvement benefits are collected directly in the law department. Revenues for golf permits and park concessions are collected by the Bureau of Parks.

The Department of Welfare collects considerable money directly for services to patients at the city-owned hospitals. The Bureau of Highways and Sewers last year collected more than $50,000 in various street paving and excavation charges and permits.

Within the last year the postage stamp allowance for the City County Building was placed entirely in the hands of a mailing department in the Controller's office with the result that up until the three cent postage came into effect the city had cut its mailing costs in half for 1932.

BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

RISE IN PRICE INDEX BUOYS SENTIMENT

NEW YORK, July 11.—(AP.)—An advance in a few important commodity prices, implying increased purchasing power for at least a portion of the nation's farming community, furnished the brightest spot in the past week's business news. Meanwhile, the heavier industries continued to lag, a tendency that was influenced by the Fourth of July holiday period.

Retail trade likewise continued to bump along the low levels of late June, causing Dun's to comment that "it is believed that production generally in most of the basic industries will continue at less than half normal capacity."

RAW MATERIALS UP

With many commodies now selling at bare cost of production, and some of them actually lower, the upturn in a fairly wide list last week caused considerable encouragement. After allowing for the important part normally played by seasonal influences, the analist index increased to 91.2, as of July 5, against 90.6 the week before, and 87.3 when a new post-war low was established on June 14.

Gains predominated in cotton, crude petroleum, livestock and meat divisions, more than offsetting losses in the grain, refining, gasoline and spot hides divisions.

The hog market was the cause of considerable enthusiasm. Late in the week, a further rally carried average hog prices to $5 per hundredweight. Last week, the average had been around $4.70, and at their low point in June, prices had established an average of around $3.

POLITICS AND POWER

The aftermath of the Chicago convention of the Democratic party was reflected in the publication of electric power production statistics for the week ended July 2. The total stood at 1,456,961,000 kilowatt hours, against 1,440,541,000 the week before. Approximately one-half of this gain, which covers the nation as a whole, was contributed by the Chicago district in which the Democratic delegates consumed the midnight juice freely and, on one historic occasion, spent the entire night in the convention hall.

Mailing 'Ideas' to Merchants

MISS EMMA PRIORE MISS REGINA BUCKLEY MISS HELEN MILSER LOUIS P. WEIS

ADDED SERVICE GIVEN RETAIL GROCERS

During the last 30 days, an unusual merchandising and advertising service for independent retail grocers in the tri-state district has been instituted by M. Rom & Sons, wholesale distributors, at 3901 Butler street. The Rom plan was devised to assist the merchant in display and selling, according to George Rom. He said:

"We have developed a system of service, operated through a board of control consisting of 35 managers and executives in 30 branch offices throughout Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia whereby merchants may consult with experts regarding their individual problems.

"A library consisting of current periodicals with articles pertaining to market conditions is available. Simple accounting systems are worked out with individual consideration. Legislation affecting the grocery industry is at their disposal."

In conjunction with the retailer, general store arrangements and remodeling plans are discussed. The advertising service consists of newspaper ads, window streamers, hand bills, art work and general layout, Mr. Rom said.

REAL ESTATE RECOVERY IS EXPECTED

Real estate has stood the depression better than any other form of investment, according to John H. Scott, head of the Scott Mortgage Company, Frick Annex Building. He said:

"In Pittsburgh there is no real over-production of homes, and when the turn in business comes, a sharp rise in the real estate market is assured, because many houses are now selling below the cost of present day construction.

"I think that purchase of homes at the present time is good judgment. The dividend of a home is the actual daily use of the property. There is an assured return which cannot be said of any other investment. It is a buyer's market today and the wise buyer is taking advantage of it."

LAST SLUMPS GREATER

There was a much greater debacle of real estate values in 1907 than the present depression has witnessed, Mr. Scott said. In two years, however, values were higher than before. He continued:

"Recovery will be slower today, but after the turning point, comparatively steady if one can judge by the depressions of 1819, 1837, 1857 and 1873. The groundwork is now being laid for another period of normal business which, in the cycle of business will probably eventually be followed by another period of inflation."

Every 40 or 50 years, according to Mr. Scott, we experienced an excessive deflation similar to the present one, because the preceding period has been one of excessive inflation. What this country needs is strong and determined leadership in government and business, he declared.

New Real Estate Bond Holders' Committee Is Organized.

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

A NEW SOLUTION HAS been offered to holders of real estate mortgage bonds. For months protective committees, consisting of representatives of the houses originating the securities, have been clamoring for deposits of defaulted bonds. For almost an equal period other organizations have been asking for deposits and have been declaring that the sponsoring organizations are getting unreasonable fees out of the process of resurrecting their deflated real estate ventures.

A bitter battle has raged between the two classes of protective committees. Each type has declared that it has the true welfare of the bondholders at heart. Each has charged the opposing group with resorting to racketeer methods.

Now comes an entirely new organization. Judging from the names connected with it, the new committee should be free from charges of personal interest as well as from a desire to nip forbidden profits from security owners.

* * *

New Bond Protective Committee Formed

THE ORGANIZATION of a general protective committee of radically new type for holders of more than $3,000,000,000 of real estate bonds now in default throughout the United States has been announced.

Samuel Seabury, who directed the Hofstadter inquiry into the affairs of New York City, will be chief counsel of the committee, and will be actively in charge of its investigations and legal procedures.

The committee itself is made up of Dr. Edwin R. A. Seligman, professor emeritus of political economy at Columbia University; Herbert Bayard Swope, former executive editor of the New York World; A. M. Austin, executive vice president of the Harriman National Bank and Trust Company; Matthew G. Ely & Co., and Louis K. Comstock, vice president of the Merchants' Association of New York and chairman of the board of L. K. Comstock & Co., contracting electrical engineers. Associate counsel will be Cotton, Franklin, Wright & Gordon, and Samuel L. Chess. Maurice Epstein is secretary of the committee, with offices at 17 John street, New York City. The downtown branch of the Harriman National Bank and Trust Company at 59 Liberty street will be the depositary.

Men Had No Interest In Original Offerings

EMPHASIS IS LAID in the announcement on the circumstance, unusual in such undertakings, that the committee is made up of men who have had no connection with the marketing of real estate securities, and who can give independent thought and judgment to the investigation of issues under which defaults have occurred or are threatened, the protection of the interests of the bondholders and the enforcement of their rights.

The program of the committee calls for exhaustive investigation of every issue from the time it was put out. Each step thereafter will be inquired into so that every possible advantage may be taken in behalf of the owners of the securities. Instances are not uncommon of rights that have been disregarded entirely or that have not been enforced, and this committee will go far more closely into such matters than has been customary.

Twenty-seven issues are listed in the committee's announcement. Twenty-three of these were distributed by S. W. Straus & Co., of whose bonds about $700,000,000 are outstanding, with about 60 per cent of this sum in default.

The committee is empowered to accept other issues than those listed, and holders of securities under them are invited to seek the advice of the committee regarding them. Already substantial blocks of bonds are ready for deposit.

COPPER MARKET UNSETTLED

NEW YORK, July 11.—Copper was quiet and unsettled during the week. The domestic basis remained unchanged at 5⅜ cents delivered in the Connecticut Valley, but the export situation was easier with small sales reported at 5 cents, a new low record. Domestic consumers show no anxiety to buy so long as the price keeps above the world market level because of the increased duty.

Although quiet, the tin market was firm, reflecting strength at London, reports of plans to curtail production and the formation of a new pool to remove large tonnages from the market.

Lead was easier due to a slow consuming demand which made prices sensitive to a few cheap offerings pressed for sale by producers.

REAL ESTATE LOANS GAIN

NEWARK, N. J., July 11.—Real estate mortgage loans made by the Prudential Insurance Company of America during the first six months of 1932 amounted to $41,305,503.

Adhering to its policy of aiding home and apartment owners, the Prudential loaned $28,022,427 of this sum for such purposes. There were 5,015 dwelling loans for $25,209,500, and 183 apartment loans for $2,812,927, affording, in all, living accommodations for 7,043 families.

Farm loans totalled 2,428 for $11,266,475, and the remainder of $41,305,503 loaned during the first half of 1932 is represented by 76 mortgages on city properties other than those for residential purposes, the total of these being $2,016,600.

Central to Abandon Michigan Trackage

WASHINGTON, July 9.—(INS.)—Joint application has been made to the Interstate Commerce Commission by the New York Central, Michigan Central, Canada Southerns and St. Clair and Western, that the latter be authorized to abandon its line between St. Clair and Richmond, Mich., a distance of 15 miles.

The territory traversed by the railroad is thinly populated and is adequately served by automobiles and trucks operating over improved highways, the application said.

St. Paul, C. & N. W. Loadings Decline

CHICAGO, July 11.—During the week ended July 7, the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad handled 16,092 cars of revenue freight, compared to 25,156 in the corresponding period of last year, and 16,822 in the first six days of June, 1932.

Chicago and North Western Railway handled 16,434 cars of revenue freight during the first seven days of July, compared to 25,045 cars in the corresponding period of 1931.

WALL STREET HEARS

That Pillsbury Mills had net profit of about $2 a share in the year ended June 30.

That Columbian Carbon earned about 50 cents a share in the first six months of this year.

That motor vehicle production for 1932 may fall just short of 1,500,000 units.

THE PRODUCE MARKET

The demand for fruit and vegetables was dull today at the wholesale markets in Pittsburgh. There were no changes in quotations.

The butter, egg and cheese markets showed stronger, with slight change in quotations.

The poultry market remained firm, with slight drop in butter quotations.

Car lot supplies were moderate with 345 cars on track. Arrivals included 2 cars apples, 1 bananas, 1 beans, 7 cabbage, 2 cantaloupes, 2 carrots, 5 cucumbers, 1 grapefruit, 6 lettuce, 1 onions, 1 oranges, 2 peas, 1 peppers, 29 potatoes, 3 strawberries, 1 sweet potatoes, 5 tomatoes, 4 watermelons and 1 mixed vegetables.

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Able to Replace Barbee. O'Doul Has Title Hopes. Weak Clubs Aid Tigers.

COMMY ADDS SPEED, AIDS DEFENSIVE

IF THE INJURY suffered by Dave Barbee, Pirate left fielder, in the game at Brooklyn yesterday were to keep him on the sidelines for any length of time the situation would be disquieting as threatening the unhappy results that often follow the breaking up of a winning combination. But at the same time there is the consolation that the Buccaneers can stand a break in left field better than anywhere else in the lineup, and that Barbee can be replaced more easily than any other regular.

Adam Comorosky

The club may not be hurt by the change if Adam Comorosky has returned to normal after his long rest, The Flying Pole is in much better condition now than when he was taken out of the picture early in the season, and with a chance to win back his old job as an incentive he may swing right into his best stride. The Rovers will lose a slugging threat on the offensive if Barbee's play is affected by his injury or he is kept out of the lineup for long, but a normal Comorosky will offset it by contributing a big gain in speed, baserunning and fielding strength. With Commy and Traynor in action, the Bucs present the fastest combination of seven regulars in the big leagues.

LEFTY O'DOUL is a natural sticker who can hit in any park, but like all other players visiting Pittsburgh he has a particularly strong liking for Forbes Field among the National League plants. He votes the local layout ideal for a batsman, and says there can be no alibis when a player doesn't hit here.

But O'Doul did register a complaint about the hitting background at his home field in Brooklyn this season. He was told it was only his imagination, but he insisted that he couldn't see pitched balls. They finally erected a green screen in center field and Lefty proved his point by hitting above .400 during the Dodgers' last home stay.

O'DOUL, WHO LED the National League in batting in 1929 with an average of .398, insists that he is not to be counted out of the race this year, and thinks he has a good chance to finish ahead of Paul Waner, Don Hurst and Chuck Klein.

The Brooklyn clouter nearly always picks up ground in the West. On the second Western trip last year he had a sensational streak for an average of .625, and he hopes to make another drive on the present tour that will put him among the leaders.

DETROIT HAS NOT been taken seriously as a pennant possibility in the American League this year because the club's unexpectedly high position is due only to success against the weaker teams of the circuit. To win a pennant, a club must be able to beat the strong outfits of the loop, or at least to hold its own with them, and in that direction the Tigers have been found wanting. Only eight of their 42 victories have been scored over the Yankees, A's and Senators. Against the Red Sox, White Sox, Browns and Indians, Detroit has won 35 games and lost only 17, a percentage of .673, but against McCarthys, Macks and and Johnsons they have won only 8 while losing 16, a mark of but .333.

Bucky Harris

THE ELEMENT OF luck has played a prominent part in both major league races this year. The fact that the Pittsburgh club's most dependable pitcher, Steve Swetonic, was saved to the Bucs only because Brooklyn refused to waive on him, was only one instance.

Bucky Harris, manager of the Detroit club, chuckles every time he thinks of another case. He got one of the biggest breaks of the year when Washington refused to trade First Baseman Joe Judge to him for Catcher Ray Hayworth. The fates were also kind to the Yankees when they prevented Joe McCarthy from giving Tony Lazzeri away for a pitcher.

HARRIS ADMITS THAT he would have made a costly mistake if he had been able to go through with the Washington trade that he attempted. He says Hayworth is 50 per cent better than in 1931 and improving every day. And he picked up another winning player in Harry Davis, who would have remained in the minors if Detroit had succeeded in getting Judge.

Despite the big lead of the Yanks, Harris believes that the league is tremendously improved over 1931 in strength and balance. That anybody will stop the McCarthys, however, he doesn't predict.

THE OLYMPIC VILLAGE, now rapidly filling up, is no small feature of this year's Olympic Games in Los Angeles. There are 500 cottages to house 2,000 athletes representing 48 nations, each cottage completely equipped. The reception room at the entrance is a work of art. There are costly rugs manufactured from the skins of Persian goats, and Navajo rugs that took two years to make. The whole outfit is to figure in a big sale to souvenir hunters after the games. The portable houses in which the athletes are to live will go for $140 each. The officials have constructed a special bungalow, adding a kitchen and a living room to the regular two-room arrangement, and these houses will sell for $225 complete. Trucking companies have fixed a rate of $25 for taking down a house, carting it a maximum of 25 miles and setting it up again.

THE SURPASSING POINTS of the Olympic rowing course will lead to this country's having the greatest races in the world within the next five years, in the opinion of Bobby Pearce and Maj. Goodcell, amateur and professional sculling champions, who have been testing it during the last two weeks.

Both champions pronounce the course the best in the world. Goodcell, in particular, waxes enthusiastic over its advantages, and rates it superior to the Thames, Poughkeepsie and the Paramatta River, which flows into Sydney Harbor. He visions the time when all of the Pacific Coast colleges will take up rowing and meet the Eastern crews in a great national regatta.

IT ISN'T ONLY because victory will mean bigger purses later that he wants to stage his bout with Kid Chocolate, postponed from tonight, as soon as possible, Jack (Kid) Berg rises to remark. He says he wants particularly to convince a lot of fight followers that he is far from being done.

Jack (Kid) Berg

Berg relates that after he lost a decision to Sammy Fuller recently, several well-meaning friends came to him and suggested that he hang up his gloves. The Whitechapel Kid declares that he is not yet near the stage; that he hasn't taken nearly as much punishment as the average fan imagines, having blocked with his elbows many a punch which the spectators thought had landed.

BERG INSISTS THAT he is the best judge of himself and will quit at the right time, adding that he won't wait until he has been punched goofy before he gives up the game. The Kid's confidence that he will get back on the winning road by beating Chocolate is not widely shared. It's a return match after two years, Berg having won the decision in the first bout of 10 rounds on August 7, 1930. But the distance is to be 15 rounds this time. Berg has slipped a bit since the first meeting while Chocolate is practically as good as ever, and on all-around form the chances appear to favor a victory on points for the Cuban Negro when the bout is finally put on.

HIGHLAND CLUB STARS SECOND AT OAKMONT

BULLETIN.

Joe Kirkwood arrived at Oakmont for the Pennsylvania State Open golf tournament at 1:30 this afternoon. He was delayed in reaching here when his car broke down in DuBois, Pa., this morning. He is confronted with the task of playing two rounds before nightfall to catch up with the field. He is paired with Andy Sekay, of Pitt. Ed Dudley, Wilmington (Del.) pro, with whom he was to have been paired, had 41 for the first nine holes.

By TOM BIRKS

Perry Del Vecchio, professional at the Greensburg Country Club, former West Penn Open champion and for several years one of the ranking stars of Pennsylvania golf, scored a great 73 to pace early finishers in the first 18 holes of the 72-hole Pennsylvania State Open golf championship at the Oakmont Country Club today.

Battling a strong wind, which added several strokes to the cards of a big majority of the contestants, Del Vecchio matched Oakmont's difficult par with a 37 out, and then came home in 36 to lose one stroke to perfect figures. His card:

Out... 5 4 4 5 5 3 4 3 4—37
In.... 4 4 5 3 4 4 4 4 4—36—73

HIGHLANDERS TIED

Up to the time that Del Vecchio posted his score, shortly after noon, the championship had a very strong Highland Country Club tinge, for Vincent Eldred, Highland pro, and Maurice (Ski) Le Bosquet, Highland amateur ace, had shared the lead at 75.

Eldred, who finished eleventh in the recent National Open, and Le Bosquet, former West Penn amateur champion, had identical scores for each nine. Each was out in 38, one over par, and home in 37, two over perfect figures. Eldred's card:

Out... 6 4 4 4 5 4 3 3 4—37
In.... 4 3 6 3 4 5 4 5 4—38—75

Le Bosquet's card:

Out... 4 4 5 3 4 3 5 3 5—38

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF LAST SATURDAY: THE PERUVIAN FAKIR—During the recent National Believe It or Not contest, T. P. Duggan, of Richmond, Va., introduced Jose Fernandez to the staff of the Richmond News-Leader. In their presence Jose chewed and swallowed safety razor blades and then took two 20-penny nails and drove them through his nostrils into his head—clear out of sight. A 20-penny nail is approximately four inches long.

HEAVYWEIGHTS TRY AGAIN

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

George Panka vs Pietro Corri and Frank Novak vs. Tiny Powell, 10 rounds each, and Leo Clements vs. Jack Kearns and Ray Jennings vs. Bill Gunther, 6 rounds each, Hickey Park, Millvale.

Lew Feldman vs. Irish Bobby Brady, 10 rounds, and Ralph Lenny vs. Buddy Saunders and Johnny Toye vs. Steve Smith, 8 rounds each, Stapleton, Staten Island.

A third attempt will be made tonight to stage the much-warmed-over beef trust, or all-heavyweight, boxing show at Hickey Park, Millvale. Rain prevented the bouts last Thursday night and again on Friday.

George Panka, of Homestead, meets Pietro Corri, of New York, in the 10-round main bout, and Frank Novak, of the North Side, and Dick (Tiny) Powell, of Akron, are in another 10-rounder.

Jack Kearns boxes Leo Clements and Bill Gunther meets Ray Jennings in two six-rounders, the first of which will go on at 8:45 o'clock.

The entire Pirate baseball club has been invited to attend the show as the guests of the management.

The reopening of the Greenlee Field arena, in the Hill district, following a layoff last week, is scheduled for Wednesday night, when three 10-round bouts and one of six rounds will be offered at cut prices. Charley Baxter meets Sammy Dorfman, Davy Grove engages Tiger Joe Randall, and Mose Butch takes on Charley Van Reeden in the distance affairs. Dorfman hails from New York and Van Reeden from Florida. All of the others are local boxers.

The Meyers Bowl Boxing Club was to put up its new bond with the State Athletic Commission this afternoon to pave the way for a re-opening of the plant next Monday night. An attempt is being made to sign an opponent for Ted Yarosz in the main bout.

SPORT VIGNETTES

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor.

At the rate of $1,000 a punch, as in the case of Catcher Bill Dickey, Sharkey and Schmeling probably weren't overpaid, at that . . . It wasn't Dickey's fault that Reynolds had one of those Phil Scott chins . . . He's probably still picking the glass out of his knuckles . . . "Londos Ordered to Meet Lewis," a headline says . . . What! Not formally introduced after having grappled each other more than a dozen times?

Having been appointed basketball coach at Carnegie Tech, in addition to being publicity director there, Max Hannum knows whether the ball is blown up or stuffed . . . He'll make the grade; he's that sort of a chap . . . Leave it to Jock Sutherland, the Pitt football coach, to be thorough . . . Whether he's coaching a line or being Scotch, he goes the whole way . . . He even picked out the Caledonia for his trip to England, Ireland, and, of course, Scotland.

By the way, what has become of our boxing "war?" . . . Or didn't you know there had been one? . . . They've introduced another racing bill in our Legislature, probably so the Pirates won't be pinched for speeding . . . Then there's the classic yarn Pie Traynor tells about Caleb (Socko) McCarey, former Pirate clubhouse boy . . . Socko went out for a ride in his new gas chariot and was halted by an arm of the law who demanded to know what the heck the idea was of going along at 40 miles an hour . . . "Must be some mistake," quoth Socko, "I've been out only a half hour." . . . "Instruments," a magazine published here, wishes to protest violently against the failure of the Olympic committee to discard stop watches in favor of electrical timing devices at the Olympic Games . . . And just when everybody is decrying the machine age,

There are some folks who remember when a couple of young heavyweights named George Panka and Pietro Corri were matched to box a main bout at Hickey Park in Millvale . . . Tonight, after two postponements, the pair will tie up their whiskers, discard their crutches and fall through the ropes to honor the contract, provided rain doesn't interfere again . . . The pros, rejecting most of the new rules changes, will play their own type of football next fall, if it can be recognized as such.

Judge Attacked After Brown, Francis Bout

MARSEILLES, France, July 11.—(AP.)—A 15-round bout between Al Brown, Panama Negro recognized in some quarters as bantamweight champion, and Kid Francis, of Italy, ended in a riot last night when the crowd stormed the ring at the end of the fight and manhandled the American judge, Dr. G. V. Sparks.

The bout finally was called "no contest."

The bout had stirred up the keenest interest, for Francis is a local favorite. A heavy police guard was on hand to keep the enthusiastic fans in order.

At the end of the fight one judge and the referee split their ballots Dr. Sparks held the deciding vote but was unable to cast it as the crowd, evidently fearing he would vote for Brown, swarmed into the ring.

THREE RACING PILOTS DIE

AKRON, O., July 11.—(AP.)—Sam Gibson, 25-year-old automobile racing driver, of Youngstown, O., was burned to death yesterday in the wreckage of his car at the North Hampton dirt-track automobile races.

Gibson was running in third position on the thirtieth lap of the 50-lap race when his car swerved off the track, burst through the fence and overturned. The car was a mass of flames immediately, and several hundred persons were forced to stand by helplessly as Gibson's body was consumed. The race was won by Billy Chittum, of Columbus.

OKLAHOMAN KILLED

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 11.—(AP.)—Roy Gillihan, 25, Purcell, Okla., professional racing car driver, was killed in a race at the state fair grounds here yesterday when his car skidded and overturned on the first lap of a five-mile race. His skull was fractured.

INJURY FATAL

KLAPACK VICTOR

Allen was third, with Paul Maxwell, Sharon, fourth.

Tony Kay, Sharon, lost several teeth and received a cut on the nose when his machine turned over in a collision with a car driven by Don Elder, of Warren, Ohio.

ANNA KOLL WINS

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 11.—(AP.)—Anna Koll, of New Orleans, defending champion, won the women's singles championship of the Southern tennis tournament yesterday by defeating Elizabeth Bryan, of Enterprise, Miss., 6-4, 4-6, 10-8.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Their one-day excursion to Brooklyn having borne rich fruit, the Pirates were back home today, and with them were the Dodgers who also spent the past two nights in rolling Pullmans. The Gibson and Carey clans will resume hostilities this afternoon at Forbes Field, the series to close with single games today and tomorrow.

The two clubs traveled over the mountains to the shores of Coney Island to stage a furious ball game before 18,000 rabid Brooklyn fans. The see-saw battle was decided in favor of the Pirates in the ninth as a result of a timely hit by Adam Comorosky, a flash of speed by Kid Vaughan and a juggling act on the part of Hack Wilson. Vaughan sprinted from first to the plate when Wilson faltered on Commy's wallops. The run broke a deadlock and the Buccos copped, 8 to 7.

SWETONIC READY

Manager Gibson has Steve Swetonic primed for the third clash of the series. Steve will be out to land his tenth triumph of the season, and all of Pittsburgh will be pulling for the native son. Either Hollis Thurston or Fred Heimach will oppose North Side Steve. Heimach is the lefthander who gives the Oaklanders considerable trouble.

Dave Barbee may be missing from the Pirate lineup as a result of a bruised shoulder sustained when the Dixie Hercules hurled himself head first to capture a liner yesterday. The accident gave Comorosky a chance to play his old position and the Flying Pole proceeded to make himself a positive force in the battle.

Neither Larry French nor Van Mungo, starting pitchers in the Flatbush mixup, could fool the hitters and the two went to the showers early. Each team had made a plentitude of tallies before Bill Swift and Austin Moore reached the scene. These right-handers made it hard on the swingers. Swift achieved his eighth victory of the year as he starred again in the relief trick.

MUNGO CRACKS

The Dodgers scored twice in the second inning only to see Mungo fall apart in the face of a five-run drive by the Pirates in the third. Undaunted, the home players came back with four runs to take the lead. Homers by Wilson and Slade featured the Dodger offense of the two rounds. Swift and Moore then reeled off four runless rounds in a row.

Comorosky's spirit in rushing to first on a missed third strike was the signal for a two-run drive that put the Buccos in front in the eighth. The Dodgers knotted the game in their half, but it was untied by Vaughan in the ninth.

Tommy Thevenow was in Pie Traynor's third-base role the utility player driving in three runs on a double and a single.

A'S BEAT TRIBE IN 18-INNING THRILLER

FOXX POUNDS THREE HOMERS IN MARATHON

Associated Press.

The Philadelphia Athletics were only six games out of first place in the American League today, having written into the record one of the most spectacular long-distance victories in baseball history.

Eighteen innings they traveled yesterday to beat the Cleveland Indians, 18 to 17, and it was a game the likes of which won't be seen once in a blue moon. It was won and lost a half-dozen times before Foxx finally scored the deciding run.

BURNETT SWAT STAR

To give some idea, Johnny Burnett, of the Indians, collected nine hits in 11 times at bat, and his teammates, Averill and Morgan, each cracked five. Foxx, with six hits, including three home runs, knocked in eight runs for the A's. There were 58 hits.

Burnett's feat, for all the records disclose, might have established a major league record. The accepted mark of seven hits, set by Wilbert Robinson before the turn of the century, was in a regulation length contest.

The veteran Ed Rommel went the last 17 innings for the Athletics and in the end gained the nod over Wesley Ferrel, who was firing them over the last 11 and a fraction frames for the Indians.

In no other extra inning game on record have two teams made 13 runs in one inning.

YANKS LOSE PAIR

What made the victory doubly sweet to the A's was the fact the Yankees were being taken over the jumps twice by St. Louis, 10 to 9 and 8 to 7.

Pittsburgh and Chicago were a stand-off in their torrid race for National League honors as both captured Sunday encounters. The leading Pirates made a flying raid into the East and picked up an 8 to 7 win over Brooklyn.

REDS PASS GIANTS

The Cincinnati Reds, receiving two well-pitched games, didn't do a thing but belabor the Giants twice, 6 to 4 and 4 to 2. The Reds, with eight victories in 10 games, were out of the basement today, leaving eighth place to the New Yorkers.

Bill Hallahan and Dizzy Dean hurled the Cardinals to a double win over the Phillies, 7 to 5 and 3 to 1. The twin victory pushed the world champions all the way from sixth place to fourth in the league standing. The box score of the Cleveland - Philadelphia game follows:

Olympic Chiefs Here Tomorrow

Fred Rubien, secretary of the American Olympic committee; Dan Ferris, secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union, and other amateur athletic notables, will pass through Pittsburgh tomorrow morning en route to the Olympic games in California. They will stop off here long enough for a conference with John T. Taylor, a well-known Olympic official for a number of years.

The Yale-Harvard-Princeton football squad, heading for California to play a football game against an all-Coast team, will pass through Pittsburgh tonight, being due at the Pennsylvania Station at 11:12 o'clock, daylight time.

Amateur Athletics

Derland Johnston, local diver, is working out in California with Mickey and Johnny Reilly, Dutch Smith, Richard Degner and other star divers in preperation for the Olympic trials.

Dominick Bufalino, of Ambridge, is in San Francisco and has asked for permission to compete in the Olympic boxing trials there, which probably will be granted.

Mary Louise Miller, of Uniontown, will be a contestant in the Olympic swimming trials in New York this weekend, along with a flock of other district mermaids headed by Leone Right and Mae Cutnell.

Charley Crovatto, of Uniontown, and Paul Momar, of Homestead, are en route to San Francisco for the Olympic boxing trials. Tony Gamble, of Erie, another district champion, was unable to make the trip because of illness.

Entries close next Monday for the swimming gala to be held at the Willows Pool, Oakmont, Saturday of next week. No entry fee is being charged. Mae Cutnell will defend her A. A. senior backstroke title in a feature event.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—People often ask what us ballplayers do on rainy days. Well, some of the boys go to picture shows to get a line on Greta Garbo's curves or Jean Harlow's motion or Marlene Dietrich's legs. Some others try making a sucker out of Ely Culbertson's system, and some of the boys just concentrate on three meals.

Personally, I like to linger in public libraries, art museums, Grant's tomb or any place else that's free.

Ball players hate a rainy day because they have to stay indoors or else buy umbrellas. They are the only guys I know who save up for a rainy day and then don't spend it.

OLYMPIC STARS FACE BIG TEST

By LAWSON ROBERTSON
Head Coach American Olympic Team.

PALO ALTO, Cal., July 11.—This is the week of triumph and tragedy in track and field realms of the U. S. A.

Triumph for those who survive the final test for Olympic honors here on Friday and Saturday; tragedy for those who have been striving for long years to wear the American shield and who must, because of the elimination rules, be forced out as the goal is almost within reach.

Soon after the Olympics of 1928, countless thousands of boys and young men concentrated on the effort to develop into Olympic timber. Many have been eliminated, not because they were mediocre, but due to the fact that we have come upon an era of magnificent runners and amazing field men.

FIELD BRILLIANT

Many of the competitors in the semi-finals who failed to make the grade turned in performances so splendid that they would have made the teams of 1920, 1924 and 1928. But we have super men now and the merely great meet only disaster in their valiant efforts.

So we come to this final week with 300 sterling athletes encamped here and each of us knows that no more than 60-odd can endure. Three men is the allowance for each event, of which there are 21, and two others—the marathon and the 50,000-meters walk.

Thus the total that can triumph will be 69—and those who will be shunted aside will go higher than 250. For these the outcome of the Palo Alto finals will be a tragedy.

Many events are open ones and is a toss-up as to which men will run one, two, three and thus qualify for the 100 and 200-meter sprint events. Both fields are aglitter with stars. Ben Eastman and Bill Carr are quite certain to make the grade in the 400, and Eastman has the 800 at his mercy if he chooses to run.

McCLUSKEY STAR

Gene Venzke will have stiff competition in the 1,500-meter run. Joe McCluskey seems to outclass the field in the 3,000 meters. But when we get to the hurdles we find it difficult to find any one man—or any three—absolute certainties for the squad.

The field events should provoke many thrills. So many great ones participating that only herculean efforts will land men the honor of being among the chosen three.

son. Earl's feat surpasses those of any other catchers, according to available records.

CHILLYSAUCE

Pie Traynor made the quick trip to Brooklyn just to be ready for any batting or baserunning emergency. Pie's jammed finger is on the mend, he will be back any time now.

Did you notice the stride of the Pheartless Phillies and the Giants since they left their cookie-box parks? They have won two battles out of 14 in the hostile West.

The Pirates held to their lead of one and one-half games over the Cubs, who smeared the Braves again. The Bruins, however, are still a bit goofy as a result of the pastings taken from the Pirates in the July 4 period.

The Knothole Gang will hold forth at the Oakland Orchard this afternoon. The grade school kids are having a great vacation. Their's is the most sincere cheering of all rooters.

FAVORITES WIN IN DOUBLES TOURNEY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Keen contesting looms for late this afternoon as highly-rated combinations clash in second round competition of the first annual Fox Chapel Golf Club invitation doubles tennis tournament. With visiting stars becoming better accustomed to the local novelty of playing on grass courts, the calibet of sharp-shooting will strike upward curve and should result in bits of the best dual action seen here in many a day.

FOUR MATCHES TODAY

Chairman T. A. Robinson has announced that four of the eight bracket two engagements will be run off today, with the remaining quartet slated for the morrow. Topping today's card are jousts involving the youthful Harvard-Pitt outfit of Frank Broida and Irvin Goodman with the University Club mainstays, King Moore and Whitey McLain, and the veteran Stanton Heights campaigners, Jack Beatty and Bob Schmertz, with the Allegheny C. C.-University Club coalition of Dave Gilmore and Frank White. Another promising tilt brings together Dr. John O'Loughlin and slim Brother Billy of the P. A. A., with the home club array, E. C. B. Gould and Ray Harrison.

Favorites breezed through yesterday's hostilities without exception. The lengthiest affair of the day saw Hub Rinehart and George Lockhart, Stanton Heights-Pittsburgh Golf Club delegation, nose out the Edgeworth satellites, Quizzer Woods and C. J. Ramsburg, Jr., 6-4, 6-8, 6-3. McLain and Moore likewise traveled to an extra canto ere eliminating the Mt. Lebanon drivers, John Brown and Ed Alcorn, 6-2, 1-6, 6-0.

BOYS' LISTS OPEN

Youthful racqueters are reminded that entries for the yearly Western Pennsylvania junior and boys' championships will be received by H. M. Rinehart until next Saturday noon. Names may be sent to Chairman Rinehart by mail at 3116 Penn avenue, Pittsburgh, or by phone at Grant 6675. The tourney will get under way on the Carnegie Tech lot next Monday morning.

The Fox Chapel summary:

First round—H. H. McClintic and S. N. Brown defeated George Love and C. Stanley, 6-0, 6-1; Frank S. Smith and Leonard W. Reed defeated H. Wolfe and H. Nimick, 6-1, 6-2; Frank Broida and Irvin Goodman won from J. Wilson and W. Stimmel by default; J. L. McLain and King Moore defeated John R. Brown and Edgar Alcorn, 6-2, 1-6, 6-0; John D. Beatty and Robert C. Schmertz won from Crosby Leyda and Robert Lampus, by default; Dr. John L. O'Loughlin and William L. O'Loughlin defeated G. Cooper and R. Cooper, 6-0, 6-0; Sam Harbison and Charles Lockhart defeated Howard Burgwin and W. R. Scott, 6-0, 6-4; G. F. Burgwin, Jr., and Joseph Holmes, Jr., defeated Dr. John W. Lauler and F. G. Sullivan, 6-3, 6-2; Dr. William S. McElroy and Dr. David L. O'Loughlin won from Alex Robinson and L. Bugman, by default; H. M. Rinehart and George Lockhart defeated C. J. Ramsburg, Jr., and C. A. Woods, Jr., 6-4, 6-8, 6-3; Paul Duff Hicks and W. McCook Reed defeated V. K. Glidden and C. E. Hughes, 6-2, 6-2.

KIRKWOOD DELAYED

The starting time of big Ed Dudley, of Wilmington, Del., regarded as one of the title favorites, was postponed indefinitely when word was received that Joe Kirkwood, with whom he is paired, was stranded in Du Bois, Pa., where his car broke down this morning as he was driving to Oakmont. Kirkwood wired that despite the mishap he hoped to arrive here in time to play in the tourney.

A second 18-hole round will be played this afternoon, and the championship will be concluded with two 18-hole rounds tomorrow.

The first half champions of the City League, the Books, are going to find the going exceedingly rough in the second half chase, right from the start. Every team in the circuit will have knockout punches loaded up for the Books in each game and this evening, the J. L. Thomas nine hopes to start the leaders off on the wrong foot by taking them over the jumps at Olympia Park.

Turtle Creek and the St. Clair Frogs meet in a West Penn circuit contest of some note. A heavy card is set in the Greater Pittsburgh League, with Whitaker taking on Swissvale and Verona meeting the Iroquois nine in the Suburban section and Hazelwood tackling Wilsons and Snees meeting the Jena nine in the City division.

In yesterday's independent tussels, the Thomas nine nosed out Hoomewood, 11-10 in a slugfest. The Pittsburgh Monarchs won over Braddock, 7 to 4; Homestead Aces downed East Deer, 7 to 5 and the Soho McKnights defeated Monessen, 8 to 6. The McGraths blanked the Snees, 8 to 0, in the Greater Pittsburgh League.

The German team upset the Britons in a smashing finish, winning two singles matches yesterday for a 3-2 victory after trailing, one match to two, as a result of Saturday's play.

U. S. AQUATIC STAR LOSES

Helene Madison, crack swimmer from the Washington A. C., Seattle, bettered the American record for the 75-yard free style event. She won by a yard from Josephine McKim, of Los Angeles, in 44 3-5 seconds, clipping three-fifths of a second off the American mark of 45 1-5 hung up by Ethel Lackie, of the Illinois A. C., at Miami, Fla., in 1925.

Eleanor Holm, Women's Swimming Association, New York, equalled the American record for the 75-yard backstroke in beating a teammate, Joan McSheehy, and Jane Showalter, of Indianapolis. Miss Holm's time of 51 4-5 equalled the mark set up by Dawn Gilson, of Seattle, a year ago.

LEIBOLD FIRED AS MANAGER

MINNEAPOLIS, July 11.—(AP.)—Nemo Liebold has been dismissed as manager of the Columbus team, of the American Association, Larry McPhail, club president, said today.

The action came after the Redbirds, rated on paper as one of the strongest teams in the league, had dropped six straight games, four of them to the last-place St. Paul team and two here.

Liebold had been manager of the club since 1928. He previously played with Milwaukee and Columbus in the Association, and earlier was a star with the Chicago White Sox.

Reports of dissension among players have been heard and on one occasion during the disastrous St. Paul series, two members almost came to blows.

Dropping to second place after losing a double-header here Sunday, the Redbirds had descended rapidly after an early-season pslurge which carried them to the top.

President McPhail did not say who would be named to succeed Liebold. The club had an off day today, due to the Sunday doubleheader.

DICKEY RULING SUSTAINED

CLEVELAND, July 11.—(AP.)—Suspension of Bill Dickey, star catcher of the New York Yankees, was sustained today by directors of the American League after they listened to the protest of Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees.

The directors' vote was 3 to 0, with Col. Ruppert, the league's fourth director, not voting because of his direct interest in the case. Those voting were Col. Alva Bradley, president of the Cleveland Indians; Robert Quinn, head of the Boston club, and Harry Grabiner, vice president and secretary of the Chicago club, who was acting for Louis J. Comiskey, president.

Dickey was suspended for 30 days by President William Harridge last Saturday for a punch that broke the jaw of Carl Reynolds, Washington outfielder. Ruppert lodged a vehement protest today against the severity of the suspension, claiming it was doing his club "irreparable damage."

AUBURN, RAILS LEAD STOCK UPTURN

NEW YORK, July 11.—(AP.)—The stock market began the new week by following its familiar pattern of sagging under scattered selling in the morning, then finding a little strength as the session advanced.

Early selling was concentrated against such recent soft spots as American Telephone and Coca Cola, and carried a handful of issues off 1 to 2 points. But short covering in Auburn and some of the rails eventually turned the tables, declines were largely recovered, and a substantial assortment of issues climbed 1 to 2 points or more above Saturday's final levels. Auburn was hurled up more than 6 points.

The packing stocks continued to advance in sympathy with hog prices, gains of a point or so appearing in Cudahy, Armour of Illinois preferred and Wilson "A," while Wilson preferred gained 3. Miscellaneous issues up a point or two included American Tobacco, and Liggett and Myers class "B" shares, Santa Fe, Norfolk and Western, Union Pacific, Woolworth, Sears, National Biscuit, Procter and Gamble, B-M-T, Detroit Edison, Peoples Gas, Air Reduction and McKeesport. Gains of substantial fractions appeared in U. S. Steel, American Can, Standard of N. J., Consolidated Gas and others. American Telephone declined 1½ to 70¼, a new low, before it met support, and Coca Cola got down 2 points. Allied Chemical, Case and North American sold a point lower, temporarily.

Financial quarters were manifestly encouraged by Washington advices indicating that a quick compromise on the relief measure would follow the veto of the Garner bill, and that Congress might adjourn by the end of the week. While it is felt in some quarters that the session of Congress has dragged on so long that much of the psychological effect of adjournment may have been lost, Wall street was still extremely anxious to be granted a breathing spell from the pressure of legislative uncertainties.

The persistent support shown by the bulk of the share market at the cyclical low level reached six weeks ago has evidently begun to make the short interest a little uneasy. Shorts have felt fairly secure in their position, in view of the extreme summer slump in industrial activity, and the certainty that earnings reports will make a dismal showing, but in view of the thinness of the market the short side could easily get over crowded. While Saturday's figures for June showed an increase in the short interest during that month of only 71,150 shares, some brokerage quarters were of the opeinion that the short position had been somewhat expanded in the past fortnight.

Commodity prices are being watched even more closely than securities in some quarters where it is felt that this summer may mark a turn in the business cycle. Some authorities point out that a turn in commodities has frequently come sporadically in a few isolated spots such as livestock and sugar, which have recently been advancing. Whether the Lausanne agreement will have any immediate effect upon commodities remains to be seen. While the numerous uncertainties still surrounding the Central European situation may militate against needed raw material purchases, it is possible that German concerns may feel justified in doing some fresh buying during the summer.

GRAIN VALUES DROP AGAIN

CHICAGO, July 11.—New downturns in grain values here early today followed fresh setbacks at Liverpool, ascribed to favorable reports about North American spring wheat prospects. Notice was also taken of forecasts that Germany's 1931 wheat crop would be the largest ever known. Starting ⅜@⅞ off, Chicago wheat futures continued to sag. Corn started ⅛@⅜ down and subsequently held near initial limits.

Corn and oats followed wheat market changes. Provisions displayed a continuing upward trend.

FINANCIERS AIM TO LAY BASIS FOR REVIVAL

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, July 11.—In this dullest month of the dullest business year, the chief interest is in financial readjustments which may lay the basis for recovery in the future.

Recent governmental acts, such as the British debt conversion and the Lausanne scaling down of reparations, constitute efforts to bring formal arrangements into conformity with deflated realities.

Mr. Rukeyser

Through bringing the Bank of England discount rate down to 2 per cent, the lowest rate in 35 years, compared to a 6 per cent rate last September, and through seeking to get its nationals to swap their 5 per cent non-tax-exempt bonds for 3½s, Great Britain is seeking to accomplish a "managed recovery," rather than rely on an automatic revival.

If the scaling down on interest rates succeeds, the effect will not only be to relieve taxpayers, but also to encourage investment in new enterprises, new ventures, taking advantage of prevailing low costs and opportunities, can perhaps succeed if their capital costs 4 per cent, instead of 6 per cent, and, parenthetically, numerous Central European and other private borrowers who paid 8 per cent or more for their long-term capital in New York were doomed before the operation got under way. Under competitive conditions, excess capital charges prove ruinous, especially when price levels fall.

FORECLOSURES CONTINUE

Right now the domestic economic situation has been deadlocked by the attempt of moneylenders to adhere to the fiction that extravagant loans made under 1927-1929 boom conditions can stand up under prevailing deflated conditions. As a result, the procession of foreclosures of farm lands and city properties goes on. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation attempts to give lending institutions breathing space by making advances to them. Such loans sometimes only give the lenders more time for insisting on impossible terms.

Some of the more philosophic lending institutions, instead of persecuting honest and able borrowers, who are harassed by changed conditions, are making voluntary concessions. Some are giving relief to debtors through scaling down interest charges, which is tantamount to bringing the nominal worth of the mortgage into closer harmony with existing conditions. If this were done more generally, perhaps the process of readjustment would be speeded up. Business can proceed at any price level, but horns are locked as long as attempts are made to collect service on undeflated debts under deflated price structures and rent structures and income bases.

Insistence on the letter of an unenforceable contract — the spirit of which has been vitiated by a 40 per cent commodity price decline since 1929—helps neither the borrower nor the lender. The obdurate lender is either stuck in many instances with a frozen loan, or is confronted with the necessity of taking over the property, losing the managerial interest of the former owner, and perhaps in the process invalidating favorable leases.

BUSINESS PACE FALLS

Where relief is voluntarily granted by the lending institution in cases where the facts warrant such action, the owner can pass along the benefits in lower rents, and perhaps operate in the black under present conditions. Owners of real estate with boom time mortgages on their property are faced with 1932 deflated income, on the one hand, and with undeflated interest and tax charges on the other. The result is widespread confusion and loss of confidence. Certainly, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation should not come to the aid of lending institutions without stipulating that the financial institution pass along the benefits to borrowers in the form of lower interest charges.

The real burden of overhanging debt must be relieved either by voluntary concessions, such as are contemplated in the British treasury debt conversion plan, or by reflation, entailing a comeback in the general price level toward the basis which prevailed when most of the outstanding debts were incurred.

Under the British scheme, the 5 per cent bonds are to be paid off on December 1 at par, but those who wish cash must notify the Bank of England before September 30. Those who decide to accept 3½ per cent bonds instead of cash will receive a cash bonus of 1 per cent within 14 days of their notifying the bank.

Business has been declining in accordance with seasonal factors. However, steadiness in prices and an approaching equilibrium in the volume of bank credit in the larger centers are encouraging signs.

European War Debt Pact May Help Finances in the United States.

By B. C. FORBES

Mr. Forbes

American taxpayers have less reason to rejoice. But, the effect upon our own financial world manifestly is likely to prove stimulating.

Whereas European security exchanges have indulged in bullish demonstrations, our own stock market has remained unmoved thus far by the epochal news from Lausanne. Quotations on the New York stock exchange, as a matter of fact, closed lower than at the previous week end.

In financial circles a better showing is looked for this week.

THE YOUNG PLAN, which fastened a heavy financial burden upon Germany for two generations, has been scrapped. Germany, under the new agreement, will have to pay less than the equivalent of two Young annuities, or not quite two-thirds of a billion dollars net. France and Britain have accepted the chief sacrifices—thus far. The prospect is that the United States will, in the end, give up most.

It is significant that the shares of American banks which lent most freely to Germany, advanced on Saturday. Germany, having been relieved of terrific reparation levies, will be able to meet her commercial, industrial and other private loans.

It is assumed that the United States will not take decisive action concerning war debts until after the presidential election. Popular sentiment in this country unquestionably is opposed to cleaning out the eleven billions owed us. But in view of the almost complete wiping of the slate in Europe, the prospect is that we will not be able to collect any enormous sum.

It is astonishing, therefore, that the American taxpayer, already grievously burdened should not feel disposed to stage any hilarious demonstration over the outcome of the historic Lausanne conference?

AT HOME, the most encouraging development is the increasing strength displayed by various important commodities. There were advances last week in cotton, cereals, pork, rubber, hides, butter, sugar, silk, tin. Cotton acreage has been cut 9.5 per cent, to the smallest area in a decade.

TRADE AND INDUSTRIAL movements are distinctly mixed. Some pickup is reported in retail trade; but commercial failures are distressingly numerous. Iron production last month dwindled to the lowest on record. Bank clearings, railway carloadings, automobile sales all continue to drag disappointingly. On the other hand reports trickle in that working forces are being increased at some points.

ALL CLASSES of stocks sank to new low levels before the week ended. By way of contrast, both foreign and domestic bonds advanced impressively.

Wall street's call money rate was lowered from 2½ to 2 per cent, and brokers' loans fell below $250,000,000, the lowest point ever recorded by the stock exchange—as striking contrast with the total of $8,550,000,000 less than three years ago. Banking changes for the week presented a mixture of the favorable and the unfavorable. Money in circulation has reached a new maximum, $5,775,000,000 due partly to the half yearly settlements, partly to distrust created by the Chicago bank failures.

Finance still keeps an anxious eye on Congress, fearing that adjournment may be delayed by disagreement over relief expenditures. Finance in this instance sees eye to eye with President Hoover.

On the whole America and Europe are making progress towards overcoming the wreckage inflicted by the World War and its aftermath. In the most responsible circles here, one finds a definite growth of hopefulness that the fall season will bring tangible visible economic improvement.

Local Income Tax Collections Fall

Individual income tax collections fell off approximately 60 per cent here for the first quarter ended June 20, figures at the internal revenue collector's office revealed today. Collections totaled $3,600,000 against $9,800,000 for a similar period last year.

Treasury figures announced at Washington revealed a drop of 50 per cent in income tax collections for the fiscal year just ended.

PARIS, July 11.—(AP.)—British and American delegates attending the tripartite oil conference are in complete agreement, it was authoritatively learned today, and satisfactory progress has been made in their negotiations with the large Rumanian companies.

Proposals to curtail production require, however, the approval of numerous small Rumanian organizations. The British and Americans apparently are disposed to guarantee the future of these smaller companies by purchasing part of their output.

Small Industries Vital Factor —Hoover

SILVER BAY, N. Y., July 11.—(AP.)—President Hoover, in a message today to the second annual conference on smaller industries held here, declared these little units of the economic system were "vitally important in the human sense," employing half of the workers of the nation.

The President's message was read at the opening of the conference, a meeting of leaders or representatives of the smaller industries of the nation. The conference is intended to provide an opportunity for executives of the smaller plants to hold round-table talks on the problems of the industrial unit their companies represent.

COTTON DIPS UNDER SALES

NEW YORK, July 11.—Cotton futures opened steady, 5-7 lower, in response to lower Liverpool cables and owing to favorable weather over the week-end.

Initial offerings were absorbed by covering and trade buying, but after some little irregularity prices eased further under continued liquidation combined with some Liverpool, local and New Orleans selling. October dipped to 5.81 and December to 5.94, with active months showing net losses of about 9 to 12 points at the end of the first half hour.

The market was quiet later in the morning and prices held fairly steady. At midday the market was quiet. October was selling at 5.83, or within 2 points of the lowest, and the general list ruled about 6 to 12 points net lower.

Improvement in Stock Prices Expected This Week

NEW YORK, July 11.—(INS.)—The new week should bring with it some improvement in stock prices.

For one thing, Wall street should have had enough time to digest just what the agreement at the Lausanne conference means. At the present time the Street's reaction to the whole affair is ironical. The way the market has responded to the news is pathetic in comparison with its spurt just a year ago on the Hoover debt proposal when stocks were selling anywhere from three to four times their present prices.

The whole thing indicates that people don't like stocks any more whatever the news. In fact, the market is so friendless that it may take the turn that it has so stubbornly refused to take when the galleries were watching it.

One factor operating against any real upturn in the market is the report that Congress may stay in session through the summer Solons, combined with the heat, the second quarter reports and dividend meetings will militate against any rally.

Next week the market will have to contend with dividend actions on the Consolidated Oil preferred, Continental Can, Hudson and Manhattan preferred, Loose Wiles Biscuit, Liquid Carbonic, Procter and Gamble and Woolworth. One thing in the market's favor is the continued foreign buying which has been reported coming in. In the past the foreigners have always been about six weeks to two months ahead of the domestic traders in buying and in getting out from under.

Real Estate Bond Committee Formed

NEW YORK, July 11.—Organization of a general protective committee for holders of real estate bonds now in default throughout the United States, has been formed with Samuel Easbury as chief counsel. Mr. Seabury will be actively in charge of its investigations and legal procedures. The downtown branch of the Harriman National Bank and Trust Company will be the depositary.

Big Chains Combine To Fight New Tax

ST. Louis, July 11.—The F. W. Woolworth Company, S. S. Kresge Company, John R. Thompson Company and the White Castle System have joined the Kroger Grocery and Baking Company in a legal fight to invalidate this city's new chain store tax.

The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company and the United Cigar Stores Company had already joined in the fight, hearing for which is set July 15.

Hazel-Atlas Glass Operations Expand

The Clarksburg (W. Va.) plant of Hazel-Atlas Glass Company is operating at the highest rate since 1921 due to a large influx of orders, according to company officials. Two tanks were operated yesterday for the first time in 11 years.

California Crude Production Gains

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—California crude oil output in the week ended July 7 averaged 466,350 barrels daily, a gain of 16,850 barrels over the previous week, according to the California Oil World.

Neal H. Anderson, California oil production umpire for more than two years, has resigned. No successor has been appointed yet.

Hog Prices Rise To New High At Chicago

CHICAGO, July 16. — Hog prices at the yards here this morning were 5 cents to 10 cents higher than Friday's average, and established a new top of $5.55 a hundredweight for the current rise. Selling was slow at the advance, but Saturday's small setback was more than wiped out. Hogs of 180 to 240-pound weight sold at $5.40 to $5.50.

Bond Pool's" Operations Factor in Recent Price Rise.

The American Securities Investing Corporation, referred to as the "bond pool," has been going ahead with its operations consistently since formation at the beginning of June. Its activities, the center of much conjecture less than six weeks ago, have ceased to arouse much in the way of speculation or discussion, but the company, representing coordinated efforts of leading New York banks in the bond market, has been proceeding unostentatiously with its program. Current estimates, unofficial of course, indicate the company has used about $10,000,000 of its $100,000,000 capitalization to date. The bond market meanwhile has displayed a firmer undertone, particularly in railroad and utility divisions.

Steady pressure on Union Pacific is indicative of the tendency in market circles to anticipate a further adjustment in the dividend rate by directors at their next meeting. The board voted a reduction to the present $6 basis at its May meeting, marking the first break in the $10 annual rate which had been maintained uninterruptedly since 1919. Net available for the common stock last year was equivalent to $9.93 a share, but this year it is indicated the balance for common dividends will be much smaller, probably averaging between $3 and $4 a share. While the current low prices for the stock suggest the possibilities of complete omission, those familiar with the situation are of the opinion that a rate in keeping with indicated earning capacity will be voted.

There is some evidence that steel mills were picking up after their independence day shutdowns, since Youngstown district plants will be at 17 per cent of capacity early this week, a rise of 4 points from a week ago. Spokesmen for the industry insist that improvement is on the way, pointing out that stocks of materials have been completely liquidated and that demand should be lively once it appears, however, comparatively unimpressive improvement is anticipated until late summer or early autumn. United States Steel's backlog dwindled 142,394 tons last month to a total of 2,034,768 tons, the lowest on record. A decline, of course, was quite expected, since the depressed state of the steel industry has been anything but a secret; however, the loss actually suffered was somewhat above the average June drop for the past several years.

Despite the stock market's inability at the moment to look beyond the current low state of corporate earnings, and further prospective dividend casualties, Wall street was by no means inclined to minimize the broader aspects of the Lausanne agreement. It was felt that a serious threat of an acute crisis in Central Europe this summer or autumn had been lifted. It was pointed out that forced exports of goods from Germany should come to an end, that capital which has fled from Central Europe should return, and that with a gradual restoration of confidence, the channels of trade should again be opened. Several observers were particularly hopeful over the prospects of the lifting of pressure against commodity prices.

The American banking fraternity, at least that portion involved in the German credits, will be greatly heartened by lifting of reparations. That theirs has been a selfish interest is secondary to the indisputable fact that the banks once again are favored by a momentous development. Everything possible has been done to remove the last excuse for the bankers, who have been proclaiming that a more liberal domestic credit policy was impossible while "elements of doubt" remained. Under the circumstances, and provided that the reparations settlement is definite and not wholly dependent upon United States cancellation of Allied debts, the position of the large American banks is enormously strengthened.

"Industry generally is close to an absolute bottom level, reflecting the greater than average inertia in reopening plants following the Independence Day holiday," says Standard Statistics Company. "From a negative standpoint this factor in itself is having its favorable repercussions. That is, it has placed general activity on such a low base that the more normal seasonal influences usually at work in individual situations are now assuming greater weight than the general blanketing effect of the depression, which had previously overshadowed individual price movements. Such developments as the recent sharp advance in livestock and food prices are typical of this stage of the cycle."

Lynn's Visit to Attorney's Place Is Marred by Thoughts of Tom

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Millie Carter was very pretty. Reappearing, she wore lounging pajamas of black velvet and had jade at her ears, jade on her wrists, jade as her symbol. She had proprietary airs toward her host. She had, she thought, a right to wear them, as gayly as she wore the cool green stones. Or at least, when they had been together ages ago, he had been—interested. Was no longer, it appeared.

Lynn was eating sandwiches with the zest induced by tennis, a naturally healthy appetite and an early, hurried luncheon. David Dwight smiled at her lazily. He said, "I was going to suggest a swim, but I won't—not now."

"Eight-thirty."

"We've time," she said.

Millie was saying, "Bridge? I haven't had a game of bridge since Easter. I swore off. But—"

"Let's," said Travis.

Dwight touched a bell rope. Wilkins, the servant who had been with him in the penthouse, came into the room. A bridge table was set up in a glassed veranda. Dwight managed well. Sarah found herself facing Travis; Millie, her own husband.

"Oh, bother!" said Millie. "Why do I always cut you, Jack? You know we fight like cats and dogs, and you never remember conventions!" Neither did she, except at a bridge table.

Dwight asked, turning away from the table, "Swim? Sure you want to, Lynn?"

"I ate only four sandwiches," said Lynn, "and I didn't drink—oh, just one cup of tea. I never drink other things this time of day; they make me sleepy."

"You must be charming—asleep," said Dwight, low.

"How well do you swim?" he wanted to know. "As well as you play tennis?"

"No. I lived inland so long, about 10 strokes is my limit."

He watched her wade into the shallow water and shiver with delight as the cool blue caress flowed about her. He dropped his bathrobe, appearing in trunks only, and dived cleanly from the end of the dock and swam around to join her. She was swimming in a little flurry of smitten water.

"Here, take it easy," he admonished her, and for 10 minutes devoted himself to teaching.

"If I had you here for a long time I'd teach you," he said, and added, as if it were necessary—"to swim."

Returning to the house, he said carelessly: "I should have asked young Shepard, I suppose, but I'm a selfish beast. I must be, to put my happiness above yours!"

She ignored the implication; said, "I'm perfectly happy as things are."

She tried to believe that she was, but she knew she was not. She would have given a year of her life—she could afford to be generous and reckless at her age—to have Tom with her now in this almost too perfect spot. Their courtship had been in spite of surroundings; it had never had a setting of charm and ease and relaxation. Her face sobered; her eyes were miles away. Dwight, watching her, was uneasy.

"Yes, I should have asked him," he repeated.

"No. Oh, do we go through the house—like this?"

"We do. By the back way, through the back passage, up the back stairs. At least you do. I have my rooms in a small wing on the main floor. Here you are; there are the stairs."

It was dark in the passageway. He took her hand to guide her. She was close; she was sweet, in the orange bathing suit; she was, fashionably, very nearly naked. She was suddenly conscious of it. She pulled her hand away.

"Is it late?" Her voice was uneven.

"Are you going to make a fool of yourself—again?" he asked himself.

He was, of course; knowing it ahead of time made little difference.

There were other guests at dinner. There was a Supreme Court judge, who was a fine judge of old brandy and good prints as well as of legal tangles; there was his wife, who had money; there were two pretty girls, twins, from the neighboring estate, and two young men.

The dining room was a comfortable, cheerful place. Cream and yellow; mahogany and French-blue. They had a good dinner: "Everything off the place." The broilers, explained Dwight, cost him $5 a pound, at least.

There were cocktails before, and wine during the meal. Afterwards, more bridge, the radio, the twin girls dancing with the young men. Millie, slipping her hand under Dwight's arm: "There's going to be a moon. Do take me out to see the moon, David."

A perfect host, he did so; but they returned very shortly; Dwight unperturbed; Millie disturbed, a hard spot of color under the mask of rouge.

Lynn had been dancing with the judge, who liked waltzing. Over the radio there came a waltz.

Now Lynn was listening to His Honor's pleasant flattery. Dwight came up behind her. "Bridge," agreed His Honor. He liked a game of bridge.

Somehow Lynn found herself out in the wide corner of the porch which overlooked the water. There were vines, chairs, a lazy swing. She lowered herself into it and watched with delight the shimmer of moonlight on the water. Dwight, sitting beside her, took out his cigaret case and offered it to her.

She smoked, a little sleepy, yet somehow wide awake. The before-dinner cocktail, the Chambertin, the liqueur sang pleasantly in her veins. The exhilaration of strenuous exercise, of the swim, had left her glowing and pleasantly tired, open to the insidiousness of a perfectly planned dinner. She was sleepy, yet stimulated. She swayed lazily in the swing.

"Happy?" asked Dwight, low.

"Yes." But it was not true; she was not happy—not entirely. She turned the ring on her finger. Something disturbed her vaguely.

"You're very quiet," he commented. "Is anything troubling you, Lynn?"

"I don't know. A little perhaps."

She fell silent, wondering. She couldn't, of course, tell him. Yet she had told him other things; had presented to him, for instance, Mara's case. I wonder if I am being foolish, overscrupulous? she thought. Perhaps Tom was within his rights to contemplate . . .

Somehow, she could not free herself of a doubt which was almost a conviction. Suppose Tom had not kept his word? Yet, caring for her, he must have done so.

Synopsis

Lynn Harding, young and pretty clerk in the Sea Coast Bank and Trust Company, loves Tom Shepard, secretary to one of the bank's vice presidents. They cannot marry on Tom's salary, so Lynn plans to hold her position. She learns, however, that the bank does not want married women. She seeks the aid of David Dwight, prominent lawyer, whom she met through Sarah Dennet, her chief at the bank. Dwight had been Sarah's sweetheart years before, but gave her up to marry wealth. David, attracted by Lynn, offers her a position, but due to Tom's objection, Lynn rejects it. Later, Tom informs Lynn he has an opportunity to become rich by taking advantage of secret information relative to the bank's merger and buying stock. Lynn disapproves on the ground that it is dishonest and Tom reluctantly promises not to speculate. Shortly after, Tom is offered a position at a radio station. Anxious to tell Lynn, he asks if he might call only to learn that she is going away for the week-end with Sarah. Lynn neglects to mention that Dwight will be their host. She visits his place.

Now Go On

"How well do you swim?" Dwight wanted to know.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

The doorman of the Enright Theater Saturday morning was surprised when a couple of shy young men asked for Bill Zeilor, the manager, but being a baseball fan, grinning from ear to ear, he said:

"Welcome to the Enright Junior Komic Club, boys."

Of course the visitors were Lloyd and Paul Waner, or as they are known to the pitchers of the other clubs in the National League, "Little Poison" and "Big Poison."

Mr. Zeilor, the manager, took the two famous players down the side aisle, wishing to get them on the stage before they were discovered by the members of the club. But one little fellow recognized them and in just a few seconds the Waner boys were surrounded by several hundred enthusiastic youngsters of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club.

MADE MEMBERS

Paul and Lloyd were called to the center of the stage and were made honorary members of the Enright Chapter of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club.

Then the autograph books were brought out and for the next 20 minutes the Waner boys were kept busy signing their names and answering questions put to them by the youngsters.

As the meeting closed all the members stood up and gave a big cheer for the Pirate stars and invited them to come back again real soon.

Several of the members asked if they could enter the Jig-Saw Contest which started yesterday in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

Members of the Junior Komic Club have just as good a chance as the grown-ups to win an automobile in the new Jig-Saw Presidential Game which started in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph yesterday. Fifty Chevrolet and Plymouth sedans are to be given away.

Boys and girls, more than the older folks, have always been fascinated by these brain-teasing jig-saw puzzles and they'll get a thrill out of working the new one in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph and, perhaps, win an automobile. It's well worth trying for, at least, and Mother and Dad will be glad to help.

PRINTED WEEKLY

The background of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph Presidential game is a map of the United States—cut into eight puzzle installments. One installment will be printed each week. Sectional guide maps will be printed every Sunday to fit the cutouts printed that day. These sectional guide maps make it easy for youngsters who "know their geography" to correctly work out this fascinating Jig-Saw puzzle.

All members of the Junior Komic Club are invited to get into the game. Fill out the enrollment coupon and mail it to the secretary.

If you are not a member of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club send your name and address, name of your parents, date and year of your birth, school you attend, to the Secretary, Junior Komic Club, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa., and a membership card and button will be mailed to you.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS

THEIR MASTER'S VOICE . . . "A CHICKEN IN EVERY POT"

Sometimes we get discouraged and feel that there is too much thumbing of dials when campaign speakers go on the air. Or, rather, go on and on and on the air. Just to shame indifferent listeners, we publish the above inspirational chromo. It shows the proper attitude to assume toward Your Master's Voice. Note how the camera has caught the average American family (Ethel, John, Lionel and two or three Colts). Like Will Hays, they are all ears. See how they hang upon every word, as the Republican speaker explains the wet plank, or the Democratic orator booms his thrilling promise of, "A chicken in every pot! A gas station on every corner!" Does it not send a tingle down the backbone of our citizenship? Then consult your family physician.

Shocking Cruelty

Torture Killing in Florida Prison Camp Demands Vigorous Prosecution, Warning for All.

The indictment of two prison guards in Florida for murder in the first degree has centered the attention of the entire country upon a case of SHOCKING CRUELTY.

One Arthur Maillefert, a 19-year-old youth from New Jersey, died as the result of treatment meted to him in one of Florida's prison camps, where persons convicted of lesser offenses are kept under confinement while engaged in outdoor work upon state roads and other community projects.

The unfortunate young man had been unable to work because of illness.

It is reported that he was placed in a barrel, unclothed, with only his head and feet projecting, and was then shut up in a dreaded torture chamber known as the "sweat box," with a chain around his neck and wooden stocks about his ankles. The chain was passed over two rafters, and on the following morning the prisoner was found dead, his body having slumped down from exhaustion and death resuting from strangulation.

Inhuman cruelty, such as this boy underwent, is only too common on the part of hardened jailers and prison guards. There are countless cases similar to this which never reach public attention. The law imposes confinement and hard labor as a punishment for crime, but CRUEL AND INHUMAN PUNISHMENTS ARE FORBIDDEN BY THE CONSTITUTION.

The helpless prisoner, shut away from society behind the walls of a jail, still has his constitutional rights. When these are violated under circumstances of such ATROCIOUS MALTREATMENT as are revealed in this case, STERN AND SEVERE PUNISHMENT should be visited upon the officers of the law who betray its purposes and use their power with brutality against defenseless men.

Florida has done well to institute a prosecution. It should be followed with energy and it should give the cue to the prison authorities of every other state in the Union to investigate their penal institutions and root out similar abuses, if found to exist within their jurisdictions.

Garsaud Unfit

Senate Should Reject Commissioner Known as Stronger Friend of Power Trust Than Its Own Lawyers.

Every consideration of public interest demands that the Senate reject President Hoover's renomination of Marcel Garsaud, New Orleans Democrat and protege of the power trust, as a federal power commissioner.

In attempting to jam through a reappointment of Garsaud at the fag end of the session the administration threatens a base surrender of every inch of ground the public has gained in the water power fight.

The power commission's authority to stop the power trust's "watering" of securities, and its profiteering in rates, has just been sweepingly upheld by the District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

The next step is for the power commission, in accordance with that decision and with its sworn duty under the law, to eliminate the scores of millions of dollars of "water" and padding from $600,000,000 of investment claims awaiting its disposal.

No task calls more insistently for men of absolute independence, of single-minded devotion to interests of the public which are squarely and irreconcilably in conflict with the interests of the power trust.

Nothing has been found in Garsaud's record to show that he is such a man; much has been found to indicate HE IS NOT.

Of all the five commissioners, he is known to every close observer as the MOST REACTIONARY. As a witness declared at the hearing on his confirmation, he appears "A STRONGER ADVOCATE OF THE POWER COMPANIES THAN THE POWER COMPANY ATTORNEYS."

Yet the alignment in the commission is such that on many critical issues he may cast the deciding vote.

Long before his first appointment Garsaud was selected by Electric Bond and Share interests in New Orleans, Senate records show, to be general manager of that city's port.

In that post he permitted these interests to charge the city for electricity in small units, instead of in quantity for the port as a whole, thus compelling the city to pay top prices.

In that commission the Electric Bond and Share interests had, and have today, rich water power sites and vast plant investment claims at stake.

Since his appointment Garsaud admittedly has sided with the power companies on the critical issue of the navigability of the New River, an issue which is being made the excuse for an attempt to destroy the water power law.

He has refused to say whether he will allow a municipality a preference over the power trust in the disposal of hydro-electric resources, although the law says a municipality shall have this preference.

He joined with two colleagues, on his first day in office, in dismissing Chief Accountant William V. King and Solicitor Charles A. Russell, who had fought unswervingly to enforce honest investment claims and honest auditing. King was later reinstated.

Garsaud has admitted that, as he and certain of his fellows are running the commission today, business is transacted through "confidential memoranda between the commissioners, supposed to be seen only by the commissioners."

No one—EXCEPT THE POWER TRUST—needs Garsaud on the power commission.

If President Hoover will not nominate a better man, the commission can function quite effectively with four members until Gov. Roosevelt is elected President and appoints REAL power commissioners.

2.—Adoption of 5 per cent sales tax and reduction in income taxes, releasing income to finance industry.

Poor Happy, see how hard he tries
To please them both, the Wets and Drys.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, July 11.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and hearing by morning post from Edison Marshall, Benny Rubin and Valentine Williams. Also came a comic wood sculpting of Paul Whiteman. So breakfasting with an old Mississippi packet gambler and talk of mint juleps, 20 card poker, derringers, cheroots and silver-top canes.

In the afternoon with my wife to bargain for a Chippendale table but too dear and I stood graceful treat to a soda instead. Put in at R. Goldberg's but the family summering at Great Neck and on to Verne Porter's pied-a-terre where his Filipino twanged dulcet tunes on a guitar.

Harry Brigham, a young man of Houston, to dinner. And afterward to a cinema, sitting near Idwal Jones, skilled San Francisco gazetteer. I never met before. Also in the dark a brunet lady of obvious quality greeted me by name, nor could I recognize her, wondering who she was far into the night.

The most fascinating spot in mid-town, to my notion, is Grand Central Station. A big depot is a magnet for yokels. It has the tug of high adventure—a crazy tapestry of wierdly human fabrics, tragedy, love, pathos, despair. Like the dazzling motes when eyes are opened under water.

Prowling about a station, an observant eye may uncover much phenomena a casual visitor does not notice. It is a city's spooning ground. Lovers may stop to kiss and cuddle in fond embrace on benches without evoking usual curiosity. People regard it all as a prelude to separation by travel.

Crooks, too, often go to such vaulted depths for conferences. There is no fear of dictaphones, and detectives watch only the gates to trains. In the same fashion, terminal restaurants are a rendezvous for philandering husbands and current odalisques.

* * *

The army of cleaners at Grand Central find their most difficult task is cleaning discarded gum that sticks to marble floors. This has to be scraped off and a cleaning solution applied. The depression, incidently, has its effect on gum chewers of the world. They used to rake up a five-pound ball daily and in the past year it has not amounted to a daily pound.

* * *

Grand Central, too, has a mystery man. He arrives every afternoon to watch a section of the Century pull out, well dressed, opulent, and sporting a lapel bloom. Standing near the gates, he peers into the face of each departing traveler and strolls leisurely off. This has been going on five years. Among employees he is "The Century Goof."

Victims of dropping dividends have found nepenthe in Majorca, a Spanish island in the Mediterranean. It is reached in a short voyage from Barcelona and here in a languorous climate one may live in splendor for as little as $10 a week. There are said to be 5,000 New Yorkers there now waiting for a shift in financial winds. The majority are those whose livelihood for years depended upon the stability of their securities.

* * *

During a wakeful spell last night I crashed head-on into a scrumptious word. It describes many during the feverish hot cha-cha from which, it is a fervent hope, we are emerging. The word is floccillation. From the Latin floccus, a flock of wool. And it means a delirious picking at bed clothes by the sick.

* * *

I know a harried fellow whose floccillating took form in plucking hairs out of the side of his head. In his frenzy during what a puckish Princeton professor called "the spondulix strabismus"—panic to Jay Price—he perfected an unsightly leprously-slick bald spot as big as a silver dollar.

* * *

My own floccillations were a sort of absent-minded pinging at typewriter keys, shifting on the backspacer and peering under the front door for anything new from the latest bondholders' protective committee. In one of these vacuities I discovered there were no asterisks on my machine. Since, I've been up to my ears in asterisks, dying to stick in one here and there. Nothing creates such a suspicion. They're plum ruinous, I tell you.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

They had scourged Him, spit upon Him, delivered Him over to death.

They had nailed Him on the cross, lifted Him up—

And now the agony was upon Him and the darkness was veiling His eyes—

But still, through that darkness, He saw the people and the city He had loved.

Saw it all.

Little children, quarreling with the dogs in the gutters for scraps of garbage, lying listless in alleys, fly-covered, gnawed by rats, even before they were dead.

The dark and sick causes in the hearts of men—

The stupidity that lay behind injustice—

But still His mind fought for understanding. Still His heart broke with pity.

He had loved them! Longed to free them! Given His life to serve them! And now it was at an end.

He was dying.

Torture was racking Him, tearing body and soul asunder.

They were killing Him.

But still He understood! Still He loved! Still He believed!

Below the mob raged, their faces lifted in a livid, snarling pack. Beyond the priests stood sneering; the soldiers quarreled.

But with one last outpouring of His love, Christ lifted up His dying eyes and cried to God:

"FATHER, FORGIVE THEM, FOR THEY KNOW NOT WHAT THEY DO!"

Jerusalem—America.

Two thousand years divide them in the march of time; but they are one today, in misery. In every cruel and senseless horror, they are one.

In Chicago children fight with rats for crusts of bread.

Outside the convention stadium there was a dark, still line, with bony arms outstretched like bayonets. One mumbling whine came from that waiting line; "Mister, for God's sake, gimme just a dime.'

In Altoona creatures crouch in listless rows; creatures once human, male and female! now dumb animals. The dining car rolls by. They lift their heads, stare blankly, drool a little through their sunken mouths—then their heads go down.

I saw a frail old woman creeping by a wall. She wavered like a shadow through the night; crept down an alley. I saw her face beneath a light—the gentle, frightened face of a small child. I followed; saw her fumbling in a garbage can. She gave a weak sob and fainted when I touched her arm.

AND STILL THE RICH ROLL BY—

THE BIG SHOTS SCHEME—

THE CARELESS FLIRT AND DANCE—

AND ORATORS ORATE.

"FATHER, FORGIVE THEM: FOR THEY KNOW NOT WHAT THEY DO!"

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Postscripts to Love

When a man declares nobly that making love to you "woudn't be fair," he really means, darling, that it wouldn't be safe. Especially if you are attractive—and he is single.

* * *

Woman has been so fed up on applesauce and hot air, that she has almost lost her appetite for them and has put in her order for a little substantial understanding and a full portion of honest appreciation.

One compensation for being an old-fashioned woman was that she could scream, cry, moan, faint, or whimper, without feeling that she had been guilty of immodest exposure of the emotions. But a modern girl would never be so effeminate as to use a man's shoulder for anything but petting.

* * *

* * *

After a few excursions to the altar, a modern woman can get such a marrying complex, that she can't hear the strains from Lohengrin, without automatically dropping her eyes and reaching for a shower bouquet.

Nothing ever died so quick a death as midget golf—unless it was some of these midget marriages that were so popular a year or so ago, among the younger and giddier set.

Now that a college professor has explained it, any girl can tell you what "relativity" is. If you sit in the moonlight with the right man for a whole evening, it seems like only a few minutes; but if you sit under the same moon with the wrong man for half an hour, it seems like a whole week. Oh, Mr. Einstein! Why didn't you TELL us it was that simple?

The honeymoon has begun to wane when a woman decides that it is too much trouble to put on the makeup before breakfast—and the man doesn't even notice her sudden "pallor."

Isn't It So?

Mississippi Shows the Way

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser

WISE statesmanship should recognize the need of encouraging employers of labor, in these troubled times, with the stimulus of tax relief.

In the circumstances, Congress erred in adopting the new revenue act, which adds greatly to the tax penalties imposed on enterprise and initiative.

While the federal government was bungling taxation matters, the commonwealth of Mississippi, proving it is not backward, has pioneered in the introduction of a statewide sales tax of 2 per cent on all consumer purchases.

In describing the sales tax as an intended means of cutting in two the burdensome general property tax, Gov. Mike S. Connor, of Mississippi, significantly declared:

"I really believe the national government is going to come to that instead of all these nuisance taxes. It would be a good tax for states having to handle unemployment relief in a big way because it would mean that everybody would contribute according to the amount he was spending and nobody would feel it much.

"We calculated when we adopted it that we could reduce property taxes 50 per cent by its yield, and it has been in operation two months. Its yield is running away ahead of estimates. Other taxes will be reduced by executive order."

In Mississippi at least, there has been recognition of the economic truth that the owners of property have already been "soaked" by a capital levy in the sinister form of drastic deflation.

In Mississippi, they recognize that the passive rich—the money lending classes—have been able to escape income taxes through purchase of tax-exempt securities.

In that southern state, there is a growing disposition to trade on the political ineptitude in taxation matters of other states.

"When we get through lowering the property taxes," Gov. Connor has announced, "we'll be in a position to offer settlers tax-exemption on their homes and 80 acres of land. We'll offer industry similar exemption from high taxes."

Before the states exhaust the tax possibilities of the sales tax, Congress should authorize a manufacturers' sales tax, spread thin over many commodities, instead of the nuisance taxes, spread thick over a few. The sales tax should also be used to alleviate the crushing burden of the income tax on the creative and productive classes.

A comprehensive program for federal tax relief includes also prompt legislation of light wines and beer, which will contribute substantially to public revenues, and also drastic reduction of uneconomic public operating expenditures.

JUSTICE AND MERCY

By Winifred Black

The man of genius and the judge were talking together the other day. They sat in a fine, large room before an old-fashioned fireplace, and they had time and an old friendship between them.

"Tom," said the man of genius to the judge, "don't you get tired of justice, some of these times?"

"Tired of justice?" said the judge. "Why, man, I don't see enough of it to have a chance to get tired of it."

"But" said the man of genius, "you don't get what I mean. Justice isn't such a very fine quality of the human mind, it seems to me. I prefer mercy, myself. Don't you?"

"We-e-ll," drawled the judge, striking an old-fashioned match along the edge of an old-fashioned match safe, "that's just the trouble. Justice is to my mind the finest quality of the human intelligence

"It takes a great man to be just. It takes a man not only of wisdom, but of high character, to throw away his personal likes and dislikes and his own particular prejudices, and be absolutely, entirely and impartially just."

"How about mercy?" said the man of genius. "Isn't that a high quality, too?"

"Yes," said the judge, "it is; and that's just what's the trouble with mercy. Justice is a high attribute of the human mind. Mercy is not human at all. It is divine, and I don't think the average mind is capable of it, in the higher sense, at all.

"I think human beings are too small, too mean and too sordid to be trusted to handle a quality like mercy. That's why we make laws. We had to make them to keep people from running away with themselves, and everyone else.

"If men and women were what they should be, we wouldn't have to have any laws at all, and then we would be free to be merciful. As it is, we have to have rules, and regulations to go by, and rules and regulations must be above all things just.

"No judge in the world is wise enough to sit on a bench and weigh with honest balance the rights and wrongs of any particular case, by the light of his own particular reason. He has to call upon the wisdom of countless generations that have gone before.

"To get at anything like a just decision, in the average human case, a good judge must rely upon the experience of other judges, and this experience we call by the name of law. A very great genius might be able to call mercy to his side, but the average man isn't wise enough to do much of that sort of thing.

"The average man, off the bench or on it, must abide by average rules, and sometimes justice becomes far from merciful. But all this has already been counted upon and weighed, when the particular law governing the particular situation was made. No, I don't think I'd trust the average man to make his own decisions, out of his own consciousness.

"A human being can light a lamp. He can turn on an electric light. But I wouldn't want to give him the right to launch thunder bolts, or unloose the winds of heaven, would you?"

"I dunno," said the man of genius.
